Pope Paul VI

Pope Arrives In U.S., Makes Peace Appeal

NEW YORK (AP)—Pope Paul VI arrived on a brief, historic visit to the United States today, and was borne 24 miles between walls of cheering humanity to St. Patrick's Cathedral, a spiritual center of American Roman Catholicism.

"God bless this land of yours," the smiling pontiff said as he alighted from a transatlantic jetliner, a thin, earnest man in white, the first pope ever to set foot in the Western Hemisphere, on the longest papal journey ever undertaken.

The cathedral was the first stop on Pope Paul's unique mission of peace — its highlight a dramatic appeal to the United Nations for an end to dissension and war among mankind. Also on the agenda was the first meeting ever held in this country between a pope and a president of the United States. President Johnson awaited the Pope at the Waldorf Towers.

Millions paid tribute to Pope Paul in an almost universally respectful scene. It was marred only slightly by a fake bomb threat telephoned to authorities.

In bright but biting weather, with a blue car rug around his feet, and a bubble-top canopy above his head, Pope Paul rode for nearly two hours from the airport to mid-Manhattan. Crowds on the streets were up to 50 deep. Thousands looked on from hillsides, apartments and office skyscrapers. Helicopters roared above the 30-car motorcade.

Through Queens and its heavily Jewish areas, through Negro Harlem and Spanish East Harlem, through German Yorkville, the pontiff proceeded amid the crush of spectators to the cathedral at Fifth Avenue and 51st Street, the tumult of the welcome keeping pace with the speed of the motorcade.

He waved and smiled at the throngs. Many among the spectators had waited all night for a glimpse of the Pope. Some had bedrolls. At the cathedral the onlookers surged against police barricades.

The Pope walked up the cathedral steps to the sound of organ music and chimes. He knelt in prayer in the cathedral, then with upraised hands hands blessed the crowd.

Pope Paul told the gathering within the cathedral:

Cancer Kills Zachary Scott

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Zachary Scott, who switched with ease from swaggering drama to drawing room comedy in three decades as a leading man, died Sunday at the age of 51.

Death was attributed to a malignant brain tumor, detected after he complained of not feeling well last spring.

The moustached and darkly handsome star of stage, screen and television "simply went to sleep" about 5 p.m., said a brother-in-law, Fanning Hearon of Tryon, N. C.

Death came at the home of his mother, Mrs. Zachary Scott Sr. Her son, an Austin native, returned here Aug. 9, leaving for only brief radiation treatments by a physician.

It was the end of a career in which he played scores of stage parts and took roles in 34 films, mostly before he quit Hollywood in 1950 and returned to make his home in New York.

A private funeral service for members of the immediate family was arranged for today at the Scott home. Burial was in a family plot at Austin Memorial Park.

Senate Set To Give Foreign Aid Final Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was set today to stamp final approval on the foreign aid money bill and then plunge into debate on President Johnson's call for repeal of a ban on union shops.

Opponents of the repeal move, led by Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, have lined up more than two dozen senators to speak at length against the House-passed bill to junk Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act. It is this provision which permits states to outlaw labor contracts in which union membership is a condition of employment.

Administration forces claim a majority of the Senate backs repeal. But they are not claiming they have the votes to crack a filibuster. This requires two-thirds of the senators present and voting.

65 Jet Bombers Will Fly On Mission Over Sikeston

OFFUTT AFB, Neb. -- Jet bombers of the strategic air command began flying missions today against simulated targets near La Valle, Mo.

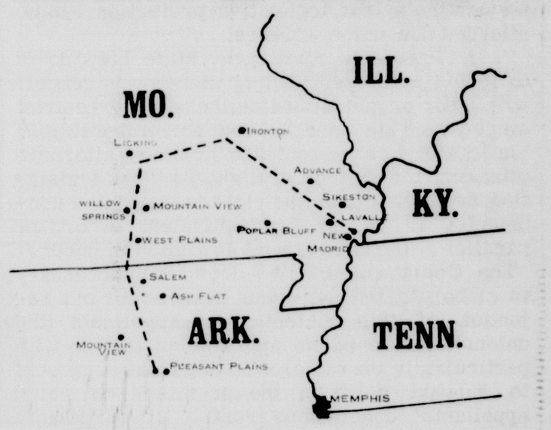

Radar bomb scoring equipment mounted on an air force train parked near La Valle will score the accuracy of simulated bomb drops by means of radio and radar signals.

B-52 strato fortress and B-47 stratojet bombers, traveling a 10-mile-wide corridor, will fly at altitudes between 1,000 and 1,300 feet above the ground during the training missions. No bombs are carried by the SAC aircraft.

The bombers will enter the corridor near Pleasant Plains, Ark., and proceed north passing near Salem and crossing into Missouri. In Missouri, the bombers will proceed north over or near West Plains, Mountain View and Licking where they turn eastward to a point near Ironton. The final leg of the corridor heads southeast passing near Advance, Sikeston and aiming points near La Valle.

The Air Force train which carries mobile radar bomb scoring equipment, will remain at La Valle until April during which period the corridor will be used almost daily by bombers for training missions.

The train is manned by about 65 air force personnel.

Russia Launches Space Rocket Toward Moon

MOSCOW AP -- The Soviet Union launched a space rocket containing an automatic station toward the moon, a broadcast Tass dispatch said today.

The probe was designated Luna 7. Tass said the launching was by a multistage rocket.

Tass said the station weighs 1,506 kilograms (3,313 pounds).

"The final stage had been put in advance on an intermediary orbit of a satellite of the earth and then in accordance with a present program put the automatic station into the trajectory of its movement toward the moon," Tass said.

Tass said the last stage of the rocket was put into a parking satellite orbit and then the automatic station was launched toward the moon.

"The automatic station Luna 7 is moving on a trajectory which is close to the prescribed one," Tass said.

The automatic station was equipped with telemetering, measuring and other scientific instruments.

The term automatic space station normally means the device is unmanned. It was expected the Russians again would try to make a soft landing on the moon with the station in a trial run for a manned moon flight.

It was the third Soviet moon shot this year. The other two were launched in the same way.

If all goes well, Luna 7 would be expected to reach the moon Thursday night.

Radio Says Army Is In Firm Control Of Jakarta

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—Radio Jakarta said today that the Indonesian army is now in "firm control" of Jakarta but added there are reports of Communist activity in other parts of the country.

The broadcast gave no details of the Red activity. Indonesian observers in Kuala Lumpur said Communist paramilitary units, who are believed to have been supplied arms from Red China, could be preparing to take on army units loyal to the government.

Associated Press correspondent Antoine Yared reported from Jakarta that there were fears rebel troops from central Java would attack the capital.

President Sukarno in a broadcast Sunday said he was "firmly in charge" and "the leadership of the army at the moment is directly under me."

Sukarno's broadcast was his first public statement since a "revolutionary council" led by an officer in the president's palace guard attempted to seize power on Thursday.

Radio Jakarta also confirmed that six army generals had been killed in the uprising. It did not identify them but they were believed to include the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Achmad Yani.

However, Radio Medan, in Sumatra, reported Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, the armed forces chief and defense minister, was safe at the headquarters of Maj. Gen. Suharto.

British Embassy sources in Jakarta reported to Singapore hat Suharto and another right-wing general, Maj. Gen. Pramoto, appeared to be in control in the capital but that Sukarno was trying to reduce their power to "redress the balance."

For years Sukarno has played anti-Communist military leaders off against the Communists, but in recent months he had appeared to listen more and more to the Reds.

U.S., Mexico Study Water Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Mexico have agreed in principle to explore possibilities of building a huge nuclear-powered water desalting plant to service neighboring areas of both countries, the White House disclosed today.

Dr. Donald Hornig, chief science advisor to the White House, made the disclosure in addressing the opening of the first international symposium on water desalination.

He said the President had asked him to announce the two nations had agreed in principle on undertaking a technological and economic feasibility study of building the big reactor that would be designed to desalt water for these arrid regions:

Sonora and Baja California, Mexico, and portions of Arizona and California. The two Mexican states are on opposite sides of the Gulf of Baja in lower California.

Hornig added the agreement is expected to be signed in Washington later this week.

Other sources told a reporter if such a reactor were built it would be under the sponsorship of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Presumably the reactor plant would also furnish electricity in addition to desalting sea water.

RIGHT TO WORK: A CONSTITUTIONAL LIBERTY

The constitutionality of Right To Work measures adopted by Arizona, Nebraska and North Carolina was upheld in 1949 by the U. S. Supreme Court. The decision was written by Justice Hugo Black with the variant concurrence of all other Justices (Lincoln Union v. Northwestern Company, 335 U. S. 525, 531).

Appearing below are excerpts from the court's decision:

". . .It is also agreed that the state laws do not provide protection for union members equal to that provided for non-union members. But in identical language these state laws forbid employers to discriminate against union and non-union members. Nebraska and North Carolina thus command equal opportunities for both groups of workers. . ."

". . .Much of appellants' (the unions') argument here seeks to establish that due process of law is denied employees and union men by that part of these state laws that forbid them to make contracts with the employer obligating him to refuse to hire or retain non-union workers. But that part of these laws does no more than provide a method to aid enforcement of the heart of the laws, namely, their command that employers must not discriminate against either union or non-union members because they are such. If the states have constitutional power to ban such discrimination by law, they also have power to ban contracts which if performed bring about the prohibited discrimination."

". . .There cannot be wrung from a constitutional right of workers to assemble to discuss improvement of their own working standards, a further constitutional right to drive remunerative employment all other persons who will not or cannot participate in union assemblies. The constitutional right of workers to assemble, to discuss and formulate plans for furthering their own self interest in jobs cannot be construed as a constitutional guarantee that none shall get and hold jobs except those who will join in the assembly or will agree to abide by the assembly's plans. . ."

". . .Claiming that the Federal Constitution itself affords protection for union members against discrimination, they (the unions) nevertheless assert that the same Constitution forbids a state from providing the same protection for non-union members. Just as we have held that the due process clause erects no obstacle to block legislative protection for union members, we now hold that legislative protection can be afforded non-union workers. . ."

". . .Precisely what these state laws do is to forbid employers acting alone or in concert with labor organizations deliberately to restrict employment to none but union members. . ."

In legal briefs presented to the Court, attorneys attacking the validity of Right To Work legislation asserted "that the right to work as a non-unionist is in no way equivalent to or the parallel of the right to work as a union member."

The Court ruled: "We deem it unnecessary to elaborate the numerous reasons for our rejection of this contention of appellants (the unions). Nor need we appraise or analyze with particularity the rather startling ideas suggested to support some of the premises on which appellants' conclusions rest. . ." (Emphasis added)

OCTOBER CORNFIELD

Tall stalks stand in straight lines and the breeze rustles crinkled, frost-faded leaves. As one stands at the edge of the field when a pulsing northland breeze passes by, the dry-sounding music of the crisp, leathery foliage is part of October's melody.

A short time ago those long, narrow leaves were a rich green and the golden tassels were heavy with pollen. When a wind gust passed, a shower of pollen grain fell to the waiting silks; each silk received a life germ that meant a kernel on the cob. One remembers the August evening when he stood beside the field and in the moist warmth of the darkness thought he could hear the corn grow.

Now it is cool, crisp weather and white clouds sail in a blue sky. Hills and valleys are a master painting. In the light of the tenth month sun, the frost-crisped corn is a picture of brown and golds, amber and tan. At high noon when mellowness warms the land, there is a satisfying fragrance of rich soil.

As one walks through the rows deep in the field, rabbits scurry away and a handsome cock pheasant stalks regally along. Field mice scramble through the weeds and a blue jay jets from an ear he was tearing. Soon a man will go through the field and harvest the ears, and as he works along with a basket that he fills and pours into the farm wagon, he feels the warmth of the sun on his neck. An October cornfield anchors itself deep in a man's heart. He has faithfully nurtured the crop and the harvest is good. An October cornfield and a man's life are written in the same language.

The gray haired cab driver hustled from his vehicle to help us into it and immediately picked up two small shopping bags.

The interior of his cab was spotless. It was his own.

He confided that when the cab business in Chicago went "company owned" he moved to St. Louis, where he could own his own vehicle.

"I buy a new car every year," he explained with obvious pride. "I sell my old car to another cab driver."

He also explained that he bought new tires long before the tread was worn off.

"I don't want to have to change a tire," he explained.

The veteran driver said:

"You couldn't pull me out of St. Louis. I love it.

"I do $35 worth of business a day," he said.

"On Sunday I drive just enough so that my wife and I can eat a good meal in one of the restaurants," he said. "We've eaten at the best ones, all over the city."

The driver then told how he had given two children a college education entirely from his earnings while driving a cab.

"I had to work 12 hours a day to do it," he explained.

A son lives in Houston, Tex., and a daughter in Orange Grove, Calif. Both are launched on successful careers.

"If you were to meet either of them they'd give me full credit for providing a college education," he said. "And they didn't have to sell even a shoe string to get the money necessary for that education."

Anyone who takes a ride in this man's cab, oversves his careful driving habits and his skill and listens to his life story is going to be impressed.

There are many college graduates who aren't as successful as he by any fair measurement or well understood definition of the term.

It is unfortunate that more Americans don't take pride in their work and give their efforts the dignity that this humble cab driver does.

This would be a better country if more people did.

There is merit and a genuine public service is provided by any person doing any needed or worthwhile work.

Our cab driver friend is aware of the importance of his job. He is right in taking it seriously. His job has done well by him and he by it.

He is a success--a great success.

SAD LOSS

A "See the U. S. A." instead of traveling overseas campaign is under way. Its purpose is to ease the balance of payments problem by discouraging Americans from going abroad and spending their dollars there and encouraging them to vacation within our own country.

All citizens should visit as much of this wonderfully varied nation as they can. At the same time, the "See the U. S. A." idea has brought a thoughtful comment from the Portland, Oregon, Journal: "A better way to redress the tourist balance than keeping Americans from exploring the world is to encourage more foreigners to visit us." Rising incomes abroad, it went on, are making this practical, and of late the influx of foreign visitors to our shores has materially increased. More could and should be done in this promising field.

Then the Journal said: "The new isolationism which seems to be growing in this country can only be harmful in the long run. Americans need to travel abroad as well as at home. We need to learn, each for himself, that our country is not after all the center of the universe, but rather a particularly beautiful and admirable part of a much larger and more complex world. Temporary controls on foreign travel, if they become necessary, will be a sad loss to American education as well (as) to American freedom."

One of the hopes of this jet age is that the vast expansion of world travel it makes possible will lead to a deeper understanding among peoples. We should not allow the balance of payments problem to interfere with that.

At least three major plans have been proposed in recent months for saving the best remaining virgin stands of California's great redwood trees for the recreational enjoyment and spiritual ennoblement of present and future generations.

One by the National Park Service would establish a National Redwoods Park. California, under Gov. Edmund Brown, is working on its own plan. The American Forestry Association, the oldest conservation organization in the United States, has advanced another.

Now a group called the Redwood Park and Recreation Committee, composed of representatives of lumber companies and leaders of communities in the redwood region dependent upon the industry, has presented a fourth plan.

Under this program, some 8,000 acres of the most handsome redwoods, which for years have voluntarily been withheld from logging by their private owners, would be turned over to the appropriate government agencies by equitable sale or exchange.

These areas include the world's tallest trees, discovered only last year, as well as superlative parklike groves near the famed Avenue of the Giants and 20 existing state parks.

In addition, the redwood industry would open more than 230,000 acres of tax-paying timberland to the public under the multiple-use concept of conservation, recreation and managed harvesting.

The committee believes that these lands, combined with those already under state and federal ownership, would be entirely adequate for the needs of the public for generations to come.

Some defenders of the redwood will undoubtedly disagree. But the important thing is that the need to preserve certain irreplacable, original stands of the inspiring redwood is recognized by both public and private interests. The will is there.

A final plan that strikes a just balance between the rights of the people and the economic health of the redwood region should not be impossible, or even very difficult, to achieve.

DISCRIMINATION-WITH KEEP

The Indian job-training program, which has supplied up to two years of vocational training, subsistence, medical care, transportation, supplies and equipment, counselling and employment service to more than 13,000 noble Redmen and Redwomen since 1958, has been made fiscally secure by the Presidential signature on a bill that will provide a million dollars a year to keep it going.

We note that this institution is open to Indians from 18 to 35 years of age living on or near Indian reservations. So we are wondering just how LBJ will explain this to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Roy Wilkinson, James Farmer or even the Vice President's friend, Joseph Rauh, Jr., ADA kingpin, and the National Council of Churches.

Or will Attorney General Katzenbach insist on integration?

MANY USES FOR HOSE-SPRAYS

The hose-spray has won a lot fo friends in its old standby position at the kitchen sink. And it's winning even more fans these days in other parts of the home. The laundry room, for instance, is a prime location for a hose-spray as a valuable accessory to the laundry tub. It's handy for spot-scrubbing badly soiled clothes before they go into the washer. For numerous small cleaning jobs that you wouldn't want to do at the kitchen sinck, the spray-equipped laundry tub is ideal. The mud room is another good spot for it, connected to the sink or lavatory there. Home gardeners and hobbyists find it useful for cleaning tools and dirty hands.

PLEA FOR EXPORTS

The call for American industry to step up exports, voiced in Washington by Charles H. Percy, the photographic equipment manufacturer, should be heeded by businessmen throughout the country.

In an address before the national Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Percy made an eloquent plea for foreign trade. It is absolutely essential, in his words, that we, as a nation and as individual companies, become more export-minded and strive to reach the growing consumer, industrial and commercial markets of the world with products manufactured either in the United States or in foreign plants.

To the extent that U. S. resources are fully utilized, Mr. Percy believes the relative strength of the Free World will be greatly increased. Only through increasing our range of freedom in international trade can we put to use all of our resources -- resources which will be freed by the strengthening of economic ties with our trading associates.

Mr. Percy gave a case history of his own company's experience in world trade to bolster his stand. Today international sales account for some 12 per cent of Bell & Howell's annual business, as contrasted with a very small proportion only a few years ago. And the company's export trend is growing.

Adjustment to world trade requires some measure of sacrifice on a company's part, but it is Mr. Percy's contention that determination and perserverance will win the markets and make the effort worthwhile -- both for the company and the country.

He says simply to his fellow businessmen: "We proved it and so can you."

One August night, a friend and I were chumming blue fish. Our boats were anchored close together and our crews were fishing earnestly. We had been troubled by sharks scaring off the fish on previous evenings, but this night we had caught several fish.

Suddenly, my friend's wife had a hard strike, and he told her, "Take it easy! He's a big one!" Her fish veered across our lines and my friend kept instructing his wife to take it easy until we cleared her line.

When at last he was able to net the fish, all she had was the head of a huge blue -- a shark had got the rest.

After a short, stunned silence, my friend said to his wife, "I told you not to pull so hard!"

Daniel Defoe's novel, "Robinson Crusoe," was based on the experience of a sailor named Alexander Selkirk . On a South sea voyage in 1703, Selkirk asked to be set ashore on the deserted island of San Fernandez, off the coast of Chile. "CENTER" and "AVERAGE"

The whereabouts of "center" in public affairs and national policy is less certain than it has been since the beginning of the expression "right and left of center." During the trend toward communism and other crime, the average may not be safe enough for the nation to endure, but it would be good to ascertain what is "average."

Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) ratings may be acceptable to the greatest number of arriving at the "average" philosophy of members of Congress. In the 13 Southern states, including Oklahoma and Kentucky but not Missouri, the average ADA rating for Democrats is Senators 28 and Congressmen (Members of the House of Representatives), 56; Republicans in these states, Senators 10 and Congressmen 6.

In Pennsylvania and East, including West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New England, the rating for Democrats is Senators 84 and Congressmen 88; Republicans in these states, Senators 46; Congressmen 38.

Democrats in all 26 other states have an average rating of Senators 70, Congressmen 84. Republican Senators in all 26 other states 20; Congressmen 10. The complete average of members in the nation is Democrats 73; Republicans 19. The average for all members combined is 56. ADA ratings for the 94 new members are not available but are estimates comparing their voting record with colleagues'.

To enable the electroate to evaluate the present trend Democratic nominees should have an ADA rating or philosophy of 66 or higher; Republicans 21 or less. Members or non-members whose philosophy falls between these extremes can properly stand for nomination for either of whichever major party they choose. HLH.

The Voice Of A Small Minority Is Getting Through, Loud And Strong!

NEW YORK (AP) — At what age should men quit work?

Most pension programs set the retirement figure at 65. But one of the most beloved physicians in history once launched a lively controversy by advocating that men should cease their labors at 60, whether they wanted to or not.

He was Sir William Osler, a great teacher and medical scholar who once remarked, "the desire to take medicine is perhaps the greatest feature which distinguishes man from animals."

The controversy he began is recalled in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The Canadian-born doctor was as eloquent with words as with the scalpel.

A great believer in the productivity of youth, Sir William got himself in hot water when, in 1905 at the age of 56, he made a farewell address at Johns Hopkins University before departing to take a professorship at Oxford.

Discussing his "two fixed ideas," he said in part:

"The effective, moving, vitalizing work of the world is done between the ages of 25 and 40.

"My second fixed idea is the uselessness of men above 60 years of age, and the incalculable benefit it would be in commercial, political, and in professional life, if as a matter of course, men stopped work at this age."

Then, in a humorous vein, he mentioned a novel by Anthony Trollope, "The Fixed Period." Its plot hinged around a college where, at 60, men retired for a year of final contemplation "before a peaceful departure by chloroform."

A garbled account of the speech went around the world implying that the great physician himself had advocated euthanasia for all men at 60.

The uproar was international. Sir William was denounced in press and pulpit and received hundreds of bitter letters.

Astounded and saddened, he immediately issued a statement pointing out he never had said men should be chloroformed at 60.

Two years later Osler, in an article, extended his regrets to "every man over 60 whose spirits I may have thus unwittingly bruised," but added:

"The discussion which followed my remarks has not changed, but has rather strengthened my belief that the real work of life is done before the fortieth year and that after the sixtieth year it would be best for the world and best for them also if men rested from their labors."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

ROME -- The late John F. Kennedy used to tell a story on Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Catholic candidate for president in 1928 against Herbert Hoover in a campaign featuring the charge that if Al were elected the Pope would move into the White House.

"After he was defeated," said Kennedy, "Al Smith sent a telegram to the Pope, 'Unpack.'

"In view of what the Catholic Church has done to block my Aid-To-Education Bill," continued Kennedy, "I am going to send a cable to the Pope, 'Pack.' "

In contrast, Pope Paul is going to New York today and the President of the United States, a deep-dyed Protestant, is flying to New York to pay his respects. The Pope is not going to Washington.

The late President Kennedy, of course, would not have flown New York to see the Pope and probably would not have been enthusiastic about welcoming him in the White House. Johnson is not afraid politically to make the trip: first, because he's a Protestant; second, because he has reached a greater accomodation with the Church on aid to Catholic schools and universities than any other president in history.

But there are deeper factors:

1. The greatly increased tolerance of the American people, who have come a long way from the days in the 1870s when Catholics were stoned in the streets of Philadelphia, the so-called City of Brotherly Love.

2. Pope John XXIII.

VATICAN DEBATE

Pope John undoubtedly did more to broaden the Church's friends and policies than any other Pope in history.

Here in Rome, an American Protestant remarked to me: "John was our Pope as well as the Catholics'. He made Protestants and Jews feel that they could be a part of the Church, and they can never take that away from us."

As the Vatican bustled to prepare for Pope Paul's historic pilgrimage to New York, however, there was a quiet but vitally important debate as to whether the above was entirely true and whether John's liberal policies were being continued.

To understand the significance of this debate you have to remember that Pope John generated bitter enemies in high Catholic circles. The Italian aristocracy made no effort to conceal its opposition. Some Italian leaders claimed that John was making the Church a women's institution. Men would not attend church, they said, because services would no longer be in Latin.

The opposition to John was not confined to Italian laymen. It extended to some of the die-hard Cardinals in the Vatican.

You have to remember also that the Vatican rules not only over the biggest and most potent moral institution in the world but also over one of the wealthiest. The nephew of the late Pope Pius controlled the distribution of bottled water in Rome. The Georgetown Inn in Washington, D. C., the Watergate Cooperative Apartments near the John F. Kennedy Memorial alongside the Potomac--both were financed with Vatican funds.

But Pope John changed much of this. His three great goals were: 1, to improve relations with all Christian churches and, if possible, bring them into a worldwide affiliated church; 2, to build a bridge between Catholics and Jews and Moslems; 3, to put Church doctrine across in modern terms and modern language.

To this end he abolished Pope Pius's ban that Catholics in the United States could not belong to Kiwanis and Rotary clubs. He urged the Catholic bishops to open their doors to Protestants and Jews, with the result that in Washington Catholic nuns have held open house and served tea to the leaders of the Protestant and Jewish faiths. Also in Washington, Archbishop Patrick O'Boyle serves a Kosher luncheon in deference to Jewish rabbis when he invites members of all faiths to the Inter-Church Racial Council.

JOHN'S WARMTH

John was a man of great warmth, who had seen human suffering. In Istanbul during the war, he had helped to rescue 15,000 Rumanian Jews before they became victims of Nazi prison camps. He went to visit the inmates of the prisons of Rome on Christmas day. He enjoyed a bottle of wine. And Ira Hirschmann told me how John consumed two bottles with him in Istanbul before he got down to the important subject of rescuing Jews from Rumania.

All this was behind John's ambitious plan for an Ecumenical Council to build his bridges with other religions. This was behind the inspiring spectacle of the largest religious body in the world--2,000 bishops, archbishops and cardinals--meeting in Rome to dissect the doctrine of the Church and bring it up to date.

This was what Paul VI inherited. Ever since he inherited it, the man who arrives in New York today has been the subject of debate by the curious of Rome as to whether he would follow in John's footsteps or veer over to the conservative wing of the Church. In Rome he is sometimes called "The Hamlet of the Church," debating with himself "To be or not to be?"

But the die is now pretty well cast, the debate almost over.

Paul is not the Hamlet of the Catholic Church. He has now made his position quite clear--that he will not follow the broad, liberal policies of Pope John.

Paul is a cautious man. He is what Dwight Eisenhower would call a "prudent man." He is following the middle of the road. And the Ecumenical Council now sitting in Rome will be the last. It will wind up its work sometime before Christmas, after absolving the Jews for the death of Christ and after adopting a resolution for religious tolerance. But the broad-gauged goal of John XXIII to forge religious ties with Protestants, Jews, Hindus and Moslems will be abandoned.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LBJ Seeking A Magic Rabbit.

Washington, D. C.: -- Is Lyndon Johnson fresh out of rabbits? Is he down to the bottom of the sombrero or can he still pull a hare out of a hat?

That's what they're asking themselves in the highest labor circles when they discuss the repeal of "Fourteen B" -- which is most of the time now.

The nation's "in" labor leaders, talking amongst themselves, admit that without one more such rabbit, the masterful political magician will fail -- but not for lack of trying.

Few observers are aware that the President not only gave labor his word he'd try to push through repeal, but that he would smash the anti-union shop law in this session.

Such a pledge was made by Mr. Johnson to labor chiefs George Meany, Dave Dubinsky and Jack Potofsky during a confidential White House conversation as long ago as last March 10.

The Chief Executive asked only that they let him pick the moment for the big push for labor's number one objective. With him timing is everything and makes politics the art of the possible.

That day he said he'd keep Congress in session until New Year's Eve if need be.

The moment is now, and labor still is counting on the rabbits. Just the other day Meany said: "The filubuster must be broken. We are confident that it will be broken. . ."

Meany rarely says what he doesn't mean. Especially not in moments as tense as these for labor.

Why all the intensity? The basic story has not really been told. There's more to it than labor's wanting all workers to join a union.

There's the matter of the Democratic - labor - liberal coalition's control of the next Congress.

The President and his labor allies are practical politicians. They know the value of money and manpower in any election -- especially when it is strategically spread across scores of thousands of precincts.

This money, this manpower, this political network were indeed valuable during the 1964 Presidential campaign despite Mr. Johnson's ability to pile up votes on his own.

Labor spent millions to put across a liberal - labor congressional majority. They hit the streets with thousands of skilled organizers.

They told their people that victory in such a campaign would mean passage of their high priority legislation. And highest on the list, though quietest for months was the repeal of the law which makes it unnecessary in 19 states to join a union to keep a job.

Enough freshmen congressmen -- including labor leaders themselves - - were elected to make this Congress so pro-labor that one high spokesman said recently: "So many of our proposals have been passed, we have no legislative program left."

But now Senator Dirksen is blocking the top goal. And he is a brilliant parliamentarian. If he beats the Johnson-labor coalition, the Illinois orator will do it with the support of Democratic senators.

Labor's policy makers shudder at the thought. How, they ask, will they be able to go back to their thousands of activists and convincingly explain what happened. Certainly they'll blame the defeat on the Republicans and Southerners. But they fully expect their people "out there" to say, so what? We were promised!

And practical politicans know all about the danger of "what-have - you - done - for -me-lately" sentiment.

The sentiment will compound as next year's mid-term congressional election campaigns start. Thousands of the activists will take it easy or sit on their hands and union pocketbooks. This could cost the liberal - labor coalition over 50 seats.

Only once in history has the party in power failed to lose seats. That was during the brutal depression year of 1934. But Franklin D. Roosevelt's bloc lost 71 seats during the 1938 congressional election. The Truman administration lost 55 seats in 1950. Similar losses in 1966 would give Mr. Johnson an opposition Congress.

Such a Congress would serve until the 1968 Presidential election. To prevent that the President and the labor leaders will keep those lights burning in the White House.

The big hunt for magic rabbits is on!

Miss Joann King

Miss Joann King To Pledge Vows With Danny Sturgeon

MOREHOUSE - Mr. and Mrs. Theodore M. Bennett announce the engagement of their granddaughter, Miss Joann King, to Danny L. Sturgeon of Sikeston.

The bride-elect attended high school at Morehouse. The prospective bridegroom graduated from Sikeston High School and is presently employed at Jarvis and Conn Motor Company in Sikeston.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

Concert Campaign Begins

All around Sikeston this week, just as in hundreds of cities and towns all over America for one week each year, a small army of men and women from all kinds of occupations and all sorts of neighborhoods will start out each morning with a common purpose. These civic-minded workers are determined to contact every one in the Community who wants to enrich his life by increasing his acquaintance with the great music of the world. They are offering, as a means to this end, memberships in the Delta Community Concert Association.

"What are all these people being paid?" You may ask, and the answer is "Not a penny nor a sou." Their reward is in knowing, at the end of a successful campaign, that they have been responsible for keeping Sikeston in the forefront of communities which offer to their residents the cultural advantages that make life a joy rather than a grind. They know the satisfaction of a good salesman in bringing to their friends something worth far more, if used, than the dollar-cost. And they know that for themselves they are assured another season of excellent concerts which were once available to only the well-to-do in the largest cities.

Community Concerts is an organization operated entirely by interested individuals who from the various committees giving generously of their time particularly during the one week campaign now going on, to enrich their city. The entire membership fee of every member, as well as the financial support from many of the city's service clubs to make possible the highly successful student program, goes to pay the fees of the world-renowned artists who will appear in Sikeston or Charleston during the coming season.

All of this began in 1920 when a Chicago artist's agent found himself with a tenor but no established place to go. He offered the unemployed voice to local community music clubs, promising them a concert package provided they subscribed in advance. It worked and the idea grew. For basic self-serving reasons--to find jobs for their musicians--booking companies started to promote cultural clusters along the routes of touring artists. Community Concerts began in 1928 and has never ceased to grow. Each year, each association of the hundreds affiliated with Community renews itself by conducting a membership drive. Only after the volunteers have recruited a minimum number of subscribers to guarantee, in advance, the performers' fees do they choose and book their programs. Since Community Concerts is an offshoot of the Columbia Artists' Bureau, each year a representative of the latter comes to Sikeston to assist with the campaign and bring word of artists available. Through this method of booking it is possible for the Association to guarnatee to the artist that he will have his fee and an audience, and to the members that they will have the best artists for the size of the association. They are not restricted to Columbia Artists but can select any artists who are available in the area, and all arrangements are made by the Columbia Artists' Bureau.

Mrs. Lynn Stevens who has helped to make the campaigns of 1963-64, and '64-65 so successful is here now to help once more and will meet all the workers and their guests at the kick-off dinner at the Sikeston Country Club this evening.

'Burgers Get a Spanish Topping

Chili sauce and sliced, stuffed olives top ground beef which is seasoned with only salt and pepper. Broil the patties before topping since the latter needs only heating.

Ground beef is among the top meat preferences with homemakers.

No wonder! It can be prepared in so many different ways, ranging from a home-style meat loaf to a gourmet-type patty.

Less-tender cuts like shank, flank, round, short plate and brisket are used for grinding, advises Reba Staggs, meat authority. This cuts the fibers and makes ground beef tender enough for broiling, as indicated by this recipe for hamburgers.

Broiling is a method reserved for tender cuts, just as are pan-broiling or roasting (baking) as in meat loaf.

When tangy toppings are used for ground meat, keep the seasoning in the beef 'burger to the minimum. Only salt and pepper are used in most cases. Handle the patties as little as possible when mixing the seasonings with the meat so they remain tender.

Hamburgers With Broiled Toppings

1½ pounds ground beef
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine ground beef, salt and pepper and form into 6 patties ¾-inch thick. Place on rack in broiler pan so that top of patties is about 3 inches from heat. Broil on one side until browned, about 10 minutes. Turn, broil second side about 5 minutes. Spread patties with desired topping and broil an additional 2 minutes. 6 patties.

Spanish Topping

Spread about 2 teaspoons of chili sauce on each patty and top with sliced stuffed green olives. Return to broiler to finish cooking.

Blue Cheese Topping

Mix together 2 tablespoons blue cheese and 2 tablespoons chopped onion and top each patty with mixture. Return to broiler to finish cooking.

Meat Cookery Quiz

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef Inside Chuck Roll.

Q. Where does it come from? How is it identified?

A. It comes from the inside of the chuck or shoulder section, the forequarter of beef. It's a boneless cut, but unlike many similar appearing cuts, it does not need to be tied with cord or string for holding together. One end, pictured to the front, shows the rib eye muscle.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By braising. Brown the meat first in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season, as desired, with salt, pepper, herbs or spices. Add liquid, but not more than ½ cup. This may be water, vegetable juice, beef bouillon or even cider. Cover tightly and cook slowly 3 to 4 hours or until tender.

Those who homesteaded on the plains in the 1870's found very few trees there and so they used the good sod and built houses and outbuildings similar to this one. Sometimes they built up against a bank as that required less sod and work.

It took nine and one half acres of sod to build this sod-house at the Pioneer Village, located 12 miles south of I 80 at the Minden, Nebraska exit.

Morley OES Has Meeting

Morley Chapter No. 342, Order of the Eastern Star, met Tuesday evening, Sept. 14, with the Worthy Matron, Mary Susan Wyman, presiding.

After the opening ceremony, the flag of the United States was escorted to the East by the Associate Patron and all repeated the Pledge of Allegiance.

The following members were welcomed back after a long absence: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Grice of Oran, Mrs. Lillian Tomlinson of Morley and Mrs. Iva Bugy of Oran. Mrs. Louis Bolden of Sikeston, Chapter No. 137, was introduced and welcomed.

The secretary, Mary Swinger, urged that all who intended to attend the 91st session of Grand Chapter in Kansas City, Oct. 18-20, to please report to her so as to obtain their credentials.

Mrs. Grace Curd, Sunshine Girl, will report on her list at the next meeting.

The Worthy Matron asked that anyone having books or papers belonging to the Chapter to please turn them in. A search is being made to determine how many reports were lost when the temple was destroyed by fire in the early 1930's.

Mrs. Annie Lou Williams was appointed to take care of any orders for Eastern Star rings.

Mrs. Sue Tetley, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, announced that a few more orders for hosiery would be necessary before she could send in the order.

Plans are made for the Annual Chicken and Dumpling Supper to be held Oct. 7 with serving to begin at 4:30 p.m.

Following the close of the business session, the Worthy Matron announced that this was re-obligation night. The conductress and associate conductress escorted the officers around the altar in a semi-circle. The members and visitors were then escorted in a circle behind the officers. After a few brief remarks by the Worthy Matron, she and the Worthy Patron joined the circle and all repeated the obligation. The Worthy Matron returned to the East and seated the officers, members and visitors. The starpoints completed the ceremony while kneeling around the altar assisted by the Worthy Patron. They then resumed their stations and the chapter joined in singing "Bless Be the Tie That Binds."

The Worthy Matron thanked her pro-tems for the evening and her refreshment committee. She anounced that at the next meeting she would honor the 25-year and over members. She urged all to attend.

After the close of the meeting, all were invited to the dining room for refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and ice tea.

The president and secretary gave a resume of the past year's work.

CASE DISMISSED

ARCADIA, Kan. (AP) — An Arcadia woman doesn't know whether to be angry or flattered. While fishing near her home she was arrested by a state game warden and taken into a Justice of the Peace court.

The officer charged her with "fishing without a license" and said she "looked to be about 45 years old." She calmly reached in her purse and produced evidence that she was over 70. In Kansas, persons over 70 need no license to fish.

Cardinals Finish Seventh

The baseball season of 1965 would best be forgotten by the St. Louis Cardinals—all but Bob Gibson.

The Cardinals, World Champions a year ago, finished their year Sunday in seventh place, 16½ games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers. St. Louis' 5-2 victory over the Astros in Houston in the finale left them one game under .500 at 80 81.

But the triumph gave Gibson his first 20-victory season. He lost 12. The hard-throwing righthander flirted with the magic mark several other times, but never made it.

He scattered nine hits against the Astros. Jerry Buchek supplied the big St. Louis blow, a single that drove in the first two runs in a three-run seventh inning for a 3-1 lead.

The Kansas City A's ended a sour season on a sour note, losing to the Chicago White Sox, 3-2. The victory clinched second place for the White Sox and left the A's in last place, 43 games behind Minnesota.

Tom McCraw hit his third homer in the last three days in the fifth inning for the tie-breaking run off Jim Hunter, now 8-8. McCraw also tripled in the first and scored on Floyd Robinson's single. Robinson singled home a third inning run.

Bill Bryan hit a two-run homer in the second for Kansas City.

Reliever Eddie Fisher made his 82nd appearance of the season in the eighth inning, setting an American League mark.

Dodgers Whip Milwaukee 3-0

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Manager Walter Alston might have discovered a new Sandy Koufax.

He's Howie Reed-Bob Miller-Mike Kekich-John Purdin-Bill Singer-Nick Willhite.

Alston unveiled his new pitching weapon Sunday as the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers concluded the regular season with a 3-0 triumph over Milwaukee.

Reed - Miller - Kekich - Purdin - Singer - Willhite held the Braves to three hits one day after Koufax became a 26-game winner by halting Milwaukee on four hits in the Dodgers' pennant-clinching 3-1 victory.

Manager Alston, giving his second-line pitchers a chance to get some work, started with Reed, who gave up a double to Frank Thomas in his two-inning performance. Miller, who received credit for the victory, followed with one inning of hitless ball.

Then came Kekich, who permitted only a single by Woody Woodward in two innings, and Purdin, who retired all six batters he faced.

Singer took over in the eighth, giving up another single to Woodward before Willhite completed the versatile exhibition by setting down the Braves in order in the ninth.

The shutout was the eighth for the Dodgers in the streak — 15 victories in their final 16 games — that carried them to their seventh pennant in 14 years.

And as the Dodgers prepare to meet Minnesota in the World Series starting Wednesday, their pitching staff has allowed only five runs in the last 87 innings, a fantastic earned run average of 0.52.

Kirksville State of the MIAA squeezed past Pittsburg, Kan., State of the CIC, 20-19, to lead a victorious surge by three of the six conference schools Saturday night.

In the MCAU, Graceland and Tarkio scored conference victories while independent Lincoln overcame a 2-safety deficit to edge Central Iowa, 6-4.

Halfback Sharron Washington scored all three Kirksville State touchdowns and picked up 50 of the 81 rushing yards gained by the winners. His last T.D., a 7-yard run, and Mike Bielic's extra point boot erased a 19-13 Pittsburg lead.

Misses on place kicks cost Pittsburg. Gary Wilson saw two conversion attempts blocked and missed two field goals, one from the Kirksville 13-yard line with 38 seconds left in the game.

Protecting its unbeaten record along with Kirksville was Maryville State of the MIAA. The Bearcats stopped William Jewell of the MCAU, 14-7, in a battle of unbeatens.

Maryville took a 14-0 lead at the 3-quarter mark on Mike Peterson's 11-yard TD run to climax a 76-yard march after the opening kick-off and Mike Crank's 3-yard jaunt in the third period to end an 84-yard march.

Jewell scored in the final period on a 15-yard pass from Rick Fette to Bob Buschmann. Fette, a freshman, was substituting for the injured Jack Patterson, a 4-year starter for the Cards.

Springfield State saw its winning streak snapped at two, 24-8, by Drake.

The Iowans took a 17-0 lead before Springfield could counter with a fourth-period touchdown on Cornelius Perry's 93-yard kick-off return. Springfield is now 2-1.

Elsewhere in the MIAA, Warrensburg State won its first game, 7-6, from Emporia State on John Repp's one-yard TD run to climax a 13-yard play, 49-yard drive and John Hursman's extra point kick.

Austin Peay blasted Cape Girardeau State, 50-7, and Carson-Newman ripped Rolla, 27-0, in a pair of games played in Tennessee.

In the MCAU, Tarkio broke a half-time tie as Phil Homeratha scored on runs of 14 and 7 yards and Frank Shedlock hit J. Davis on a 23-yard pass on the way to a 28-6 victory.

Graceland made a 5-yard TD run and Darwin Pardoe's conversion in the third period stand up for its 7-0 victory over Culver-Stockton. In a non-conference affair, Missouri Valley scored twice in the final period on Ed McDuffie's 67-yard pass to Bob Thomas and McDuffie's 4-yard plunge to trim William Penn, 14-0.

Eddie Edwards plunged one yard to end an 80-yard drive in the final period as Lincoln more than equalized Central Iowa scores on safeties in the second and third periods.

Washington of St. Louis wasn't scheduled.

Player Wins Canada Golf Championship

By JOHN FARROW

MADRID (AP) — Gary Player, 29-year-old South African, left Madrid today as the king of the golf links — the man who has won all the big ones.

Player won the individual title in the 37-team Canada Cup golf championship by three strokes over defending champion Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, whose iron play let him down Sunday over the 7,096-yard, par 36-36-72 Club de Campo course.

"There's little left for me to conquer in golf," said Player.

He has won the U.S. Open, Masters, PGA, the British Open, the World Series and now the Canada Cup.

Player's victory in the 72-hole individual competition and his triumph with Harold Henning for the team title made Player the favorite to win the award as the Golfer of the Year. He's already won the U.S. Open this year and the World Series.

Player dethroned Nicklaus with a four-round total of 70-69-68-74-281. That was seven-under-par for the sun-baked course littered with little oaks and well watered to conquer the hot weather.

Nicklaus, winner of the individual title for the last two years, wound up in second place with a 71-72-70-284.

Nicklaus' teammate, Tony Lema of Oakland, Calif., was way down the field with a total of 76-76-71-75-298.

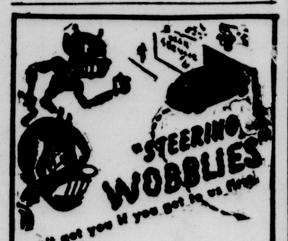

Lema packed his bags and said he was leaving to join the American Ryder Cup team at Birkdale, England, for the matches starting Thursday.

South Africa's team of Henning and Player won the team title — one held for the last two years by the United States — by eight strokes from Spain's Angel Miguel and Ramon Sota. South Africa totaled 571 and Spain 579. Lema and Nicklaus came third in the team competition with 582.

Don Drysdale Never Lost World Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Drysdale of Los Angeles, who has never lost a World Series game, and Jim (Mudcat) Grant of Minnesota, who has never appeared in one, will be the opposing pitchers in Wednesday's opener of the post-season Series for the world championship.

Drysdale will be working with nearly a week's rest. His last effort was a 4-0 triumph over the Milwaukee Braves Thursday which extended the Dodgers' pennant winning streak to 13 straight. A 23-game winner with a 2.78 earned run average, big Don pitched 308 innings during the regular campaign. The total is second only to teammate Sandy Koufax' 335. He also hurled seven shutouts.

Grant, the Twins' leading pitcher with a 21-7 record, tuned up for the big one Saturday and was roughed up by California. The strong-armed right-hander was tagged for three runs in two innings and was charged with the loss.

Dodger Manager Walter Alston said before his team departed for Minnesota today that he would use only three starters in the Series regardless of how many games it lasted. He had Koufax, his 26 - game winning southpaw, primed for the second game in Minnesota Thursday. Southpaw Claude Osteen, with a season 15-15 record will pitch the third game, Saturday, at Los Angeles.

Manager Sam Mele of the Twins was expected to start Jim Kaat, a left-hander, in the second game and probably Camilo Pascual, the erstwhile right-handed ace, in the third game. He also has Jim Perry, a right-hander, and Jim Merritt, a southpaw, as possible starters.

Drysdale has appeared in three World Series games. He has never opened a Series, however. The 6-foot-6 right-hander pitched in relief against the New York Yankees in 1956 without a decision, started and defeated the Chicago White Sox in 1959 and shut out the Yankees 1-0 in 1963.

"Naturally, I'm looking forward to my first Series start," he said. "I don't think the long rest is going to hurt. I threw enough in the bullpen Sunday to keep me sharp."

The Dodgers, whose principal attack consists of a walk, stolen base, error and wild pitch, will enter the Series with the lowest team batting average by a pennant winner in National League history. They finished with a team batting average of .245, yet won 15 of their last 16.

During that stretch, the Dodger pitchers allowed 17 runs in the last 16 games, which included eight shutouts. They closed the season with a 3-0 shutout against the Braves Sunday.

"We keep hearing about the club not scoring any runs," observed Alston. "I'm not so sure that we are so far behind in total runs scored between this year and our last pennant winning year of 1963.

"We may surprise somebody in the Series," Alston added.

The Dodgers hit 78 home runs, to rank last in the majors. They hit only 26 at spacious Dodger Stadium.

The Twins, noted for their power, added a new dimension this year. Reports have come back to Alston that the Twins employed a diversified attack in 1965, relying more than ever on speed on the basepaths. He has been cautioned to pay special attention to speedsters Zoilo Versalles and Tony Oliva.

Killebrew Dethroned

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Harmon Killebrew has lost his crown but found the range.

Killebrew, Minnesota's three-time home run champion in the American League, officially was dethroned by Boston's Tony Conigliaro Sunday, but he hit his 25th homer in the Twins' 3-2 victory over seventh-place California.

The number wasn't significant but the homer was. It was Killebrew's second in two days and third in the last five games, giving the Twins what they hope will be additional power when they open the World Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers at Minnesota Wednesday.

Killebrew, who missed 48 games because of a dislocated elbow but seems to have found the range just in time, finished with his lowest homer total since he began playing regularly in 1959 when the club still was in Washington.

It was the first time he has hit less than 30 homers and came after he had won the homer title three consecutive years with totals of 48, 45 and 49.

Conigliaro, who did not connect in ninth-place Boston's 11-5 loss to the sixth-place New York Yankees, won the crown with 32--the lowest winning total since Larry Doby also hit 32 for Cleveland in 1954.

In other season-ending games, the Chicago White Sox clinched second place by defeating Kansas City 3-2, Baltimore wound up third with a 2-1 victory over fifth-place Cleveland and eighth-place Washington edged fourth-place Detroit 3-2.

In the National League, Los Angeles shut out Milwaukee 3-0, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 6-3, Pittsburgh downed the Chicago Cubs 6-3, St. Louis whipped Houston 5-2 and Philadelphia swept the New York Mets by 3-1 scores, winning the nightcap in 13 innings.

Although Killebrew lost his title, teammate Tony Oliva retained his, winning the batting title with a .321 average as he sat out the final game. Killebrew's homer gave the Twins a 2-0 lead and they added the clincher in the third inning when Jimmie Hall singled, stole second and scored on Don Mincher's single.

Whitey Ford became the biggest winner in Yankee history when he posted victory No. 232 against the Red Sox despite surrendering 11 hits, including homers by Jim Gosger and Carl Yastrzemski. Tony Kubek drove in three runs for New York and Ray Barker two.

Tom McGraw hit a homer for the White Sox in the fifth inning, his third in three days, and broke a 2-2 tie. Eddie Fisher worked in relief for Chicago, setting an AL record with his 82nd appearance. John Wyatt of the A's pitched in 81 last year.

The "Golden Triangle" is the point in downtown Pittsburgh, Pa., where the Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers join to form the Ohio River.

Huskers Beat Iowa State

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nebraska and Missouri proved thay are the class of Big Eight football while Coach Eddie Crowser's improving young Colorado club left the impression it may become a title contender a year ahead of schedule.

Oklahoma State showed it still must be considered for the other first division spot by upsetting potent Tulsa 17-14 at Stillwater. That made it a break-even Saturday for the Big Eight outside the league.

Nebraska's third-ranked Huskers crushed Iowa State 44-0 at Lincoln. Missouri used a brutal ground game for 324 yards in an impressive 17-6 victory over Minnesota at Minneapolis. Colorado overpowered Kansas State 36-0 at Manhattan.

Oklahoma could muster little offense and Navy's 10-0 victory at Norman was much more lopsided than the score. Kansas, without quarterback Bob Skahan again, made only five first downs in a 17-0 loss at California.

Nebraska now has the only perfect record in the league. Colorado is unbeaten but once tied. Missouri has a 2-1 record.

This Saturday, the most important league game is Oklama State at Colorado. Kansas State plays at Missouri and Iowa State at Kansas.

Nebraska takes on Wisconsin at Lincoln and Oklahoma meets mighty Texas at Dallas. Colorado hopes to get by OSU and Iowa State the next two weeks. Then the Buffaloes would take a 3-0 league record into their showdown with Nebraska at Lincoln Oct. 23, a week before the Nebraska-Missouri battle.

Field goal kickers, aided by the new two-inch tee, had a big day. OSU's Charles Durkee hit three from 38, 48 and 23 yards. Down 14-6, the Cowboys used Bill Young's 21-yard interception touchdown and a two-point pass to tie it. Phil Cutchin's team got even for last year's 61-14 humiliation by Tulsa and tied the series at 21-21-5.

Colorado's Frank Rogers kicked from 33, 30 and 48 yards, the last one hitting the cross bar and bouncing over. Durkee's career total of 11 field goals is a Big Eight record. Rogers has seven.

Minnesota Coach Murray Warmath said "Missouri just ran the ball down our throats. I don't remember when a team dominated us so much."

Fred Duda took over for Bob Churchich at quarterback for Nebraska with the score 0-0 and moved the team. A year ago, Duda broke his leg against Iowa State and Churchich came in to lead Nebraska to the title.

Warmath named quarterback Gary Lane and defensive back Johnny Roland as the backs "who killed us." The Minnesota coach added "I don't know if I ever saw a better defensive back than Roland and everytime we got their offense in trouble, Lane made the play."

The Tigers whipped the Big Ten club from tackle to tackle. They ran out of an unbalanced line with double-team blocking. Fullback Carl Reese had 91 yards, and executed a perfect fake on Lane's first touchdown, an 11-yard run. On Lane's 20-yard T.D. he rolled left, reversed his field and got key blocks from Earl Denny and Ray West.

"This team has a long way to go before it's as good as our 1960 team," Devine said.

For Kansas and Kansas State, it was much the same story. Both teams are without a running threat, partly because of key injuries. This meant the opposition could afford to concentrate on stopping their passing game. Kansas made only 45 yards passing and was thrown for 44 yards in losses attempting to pass for a rushing net of 52. K-State had only 56 passing and was thrown for 61 yards in losses on pass attempts for a rushing net of minus 19.

The Kansas defense kept the Jayhawks in the game for a little more than a half, at 3-0. Then the offense drove back, but lost a fumble at the Cal 29.

The K-State defense held Colorado to a pair of field goals for a half. Early in the second half, K-State end Bill Matan hit Colorado's William Harris, forcing a fumble. Matan recovered on the Colorado 48, but a penalty nullified it and Colorado went on to score.

Coach Doug Weaver had high praise for Matan and defensive back Jim Grechus. He added "We've been down before and fought back."

It was Mitchell's first shutout in 68 games since 1958, his first year at Kansas.

The second-place Giants finished two games behind the Dodgers while dumping Cincinnati to fourth with the help of Willie Mays' 52nd homer, a Giant record and high in the majors this year. Ken Henderson's two-run single capped the winning three-run rally in the seventh.

22 Million Attend Baseball

NEW YORK AP -- Major league baseball attendance reached an all-time high of more than 22 million in 1965 for an increase of 5.4 per cent over last season.

The combined total for both leagues through Sunday's final games was 22,441,824. This broke the record of 21,280,341 set last year by 1,161,483.

The National League had the highest attendance in its history, 13,581,130, an increase of 1,535,940 over 1964. The American League dropped off 374,457, drawing 8,860,694 customers compared to 9,235,151 last year.

Cincinnati And Tulsa Are No. 1 In Mo. Valley

Cincinnati and Tulsa, despite its upset by Oklahoma State, are still the top teams in Missouri Valley Conference football, but Louisville moved into the No. 3 spot with a second half rally that beat North Texas 29-21 at Denton.

It was Louisville's first football victory over a Valley member in its three season in the league. The only other mark in the victory column for the Cardinals was over Dayton two years ago. That one counted as a league game because the Cards didn't play Cincinnati.

The Cards don't play Cincy this year, either, and their game with Dayton Saturday night at Louisville will count as a league game. Cincy's opening 28-0 victory over Dayton was a league game for the defending champion Bearcats and they made it 2-0 by beating Wichita 14-6 last Saturday at Cincy.

Next season the picture won't be so fuzzy, because Cincy plays Louisville.

Tulsa is expected to bounce back strongly from a 17-14 loss to fired-up Oklahoma State. The Hurricane meets Memphis State Saturday night in Tulsa's home opener in its newly-expanded 40,235-seat stadium.

In other games, all at night, North Texas plays at Tampa, Wichita at Arizona State and Xavier at Cincinnati. The Valley is 4-6 against outside teams, but could win four out of five this week.

Wichita got a 6-0 lead but Cincy drove back 63 yards with the kickoff for 7-6 lead. A lost fumble ruined Wichita's only second half treat. Tulsa had a 14-6 lead at Stillwater when OSU's Bill Young ran 21 to score with a deflected pass, and a two-point pass tied it. Then Charles Durkee kicked his third field goal of the game to win it.

Benny Russell led Louisville's comeback from a 21-7 halftime defict. He passed for one touchdown, scored another and added a two-point pass for a 22-21 lead. Then Wayne Patrick ran 57 to score.

Sea Bird Wins $217,000 Racing Stakes

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom Rolfe failed in his invasion of France, just as Carry Back did a few years back, but the courageous 3-year-old from the United States was a threat most of the way in the $217,000 Prix de L'Arc de Triomphe Stakes.

The pride of owner Rahmond Guest, Tom Rolfe finished sixth in the field of 20 in the race Sunday at Longchamps.

Considered by many as the best 3-year-old in America, Tom Rolfe, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, was second to Aniline on the turn into the stretch, but could not withstand the closing rush of the favored Sea Bird of France.

Sea Bird, winner of the Epsom Derby, came through on the inside while Tom Rolfe was steered to the outside. Sea Bird drew out to win by six lengths over Reliance. Diatome came in third, Free Ride fourth and Aniline fifth. Then came Tom Rolfe, some 16 lengths back of the winner.

The Arc de Triomphe overshadowed the weekend racing on U. S. tracks. The $109,400 Woodward Stakes at Aqueduct, another weight-for-age race, lost much of its glamor when Kelso was scratched because of an eye injury.

Victory in the Woodward would have made Kelso the first thoroughbred to win 1 1/4 million. With him on the sidelines, Roman Brother came off at a fast pace set by Malicious and Puck, and won by 10 lengths over Royal Gunner.

In other season-ending games in the NL, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 6-3, Pittsburgh downed Chicago 6-3, Philadelphia swept New York 3-1 and 3-1 in 13 innings and St. Louis beat Houston 5-2.

New High School for Charleston Approved

CHARLESTON -- The R-1 Board of Education Wednesday afternoon approved preliminary plans for the new high school building.

The building cost is estimated by the architects at between $1,125,000 and $1,150,000, with site work, basic built-in equipment and architectural fee to be added.

Architects Richard and David Pearce of St. Louis said they hope to have documents prepared for receiving bids by Dec. 15.

Approval of the preliminaries came on a 4-0 vote after motion was made by Bob DeLaney and seconded by James Moreton that the plans be accepted. Board members Bob Jackson and Fred Moxley were not present.

Approved by the board Wednesday were plans calling for:

A one-story structure with a circular gymnasium at one end, rooms around the circumference of the gymnasium for showers, band, chorus and shop.

A student commons and cafeteria separating the gymnasium and noisy activity area from the academic classroom section.

An academic wing, comprising more than half of the area of the building with a huge resource center at the south end, and partitions anchored at floor and ceiling so they can be taken down and moved without structural or material damage to floor or ceiling.

A heat pump assembly to provide heat and air conditioning at lowest cost.

Brick outer wall with black interior, the blocks to be pointed where exposed on the interior.

Roofing, except at the gymnasium dome, to be covered with built-up asphalt and gravel roofing material.

Acoustical tile ceilings with two-hour fire retardant rating.

Carpeting of three-ply material, with high density rubber backing to be used in the mathematics, business education, social sciences, language arts, academic areas, the library - resource center, one homemaking room, and administrative area. Other floors to be resilient tile, except in toilet and shower rooms, where flooring will be ceramic tile, cement for the locker rooms and shop, and hardwood for the gymnasium.

32nd Annual Fair Opens In Caruthersville Wednesday

CARUTHERSVILLE -- The 32nd annual American Legion Fair will open for a five-day run Wednesday, closing on Sunday evening. It is one of the few such events in Southeast Missouri that runs on Sunday, and over the years it is on this day that the largest crowds attend.

One of the principal changes in the format of the fair is in the racing meet which this year will be held on two days instead of four as in the past. The racing will be held Saturday and Sunday, starting at 2 p.m. with five races each afternoon.

Trotting races under the auspices of the United States Trotting Assn. will be run; sometimes called harness or sulky races. No heats will be used -- each dash will be a race, and all races will start and end in front of the grandstand. A total of some $2,800 in purses and trophies will be given. R. S. Greenwell of Caruthersville, track superintendent, said that by condensing the races into the two weekend days of the fair, more and better horses and drivers could be booked, and spectators are better pleased.

Officials for the racing meet are J. R. Hutchison, Caruthersville, superintendent; Felix Kyle, Caruthersville, clerk; W. W. (Burley) Chism, Hayti, announcer; Terry Shelby, Trenton, Tenn., starter, Dr. J. V. Moore, Hayti, track veterinarian; Bill Wilks, Caruthersville, timer; Monroe Leek, Caruthersville, paddock master; Mac Sandlin, Trenton, Tenn., presiding judge and Charles W. Foley, Hayti, and Greenwell, associate judges.

Another change in format will be the Regional Youth Talent Show which will be held this year on opening night of the fair, Wednesday, instead of later in the week. Instead of presenting as many as 18 or 20 acts as in the past, which was found to run the show too long, it will be limited to eight acts which are considered among the best to be found in the region.

Included on the show will be "The Travelers," a folk singing and instrumental group from Sikeston, which won first place in the Kennett Delta Fair youth talent contest and who will audition for an appearance on the Ted Mack TV show; the Fram Brothers, a quartette from Noble, Ark.; two acrobatic dancers from Jackson, Mo., trained by the Evelyn Bissett Dance Studio at Cape Girardeau; "The Metedors," an instrumental group, from Bell City, Mo.; Alice Rainey, a dancer from Malden, Mo.; "The Bernie Blazers," an instrumental group, and Ann Merrick, an acrobatic dancer, both from Bernie, Mo., and the "Night Riders," a rock and roll band from Caruthersville. The show will start at 7 p.m. and will be followed by the professional grandstand show. Mrs. Lena Shipton of Hayti is director of the show.

The grandstand show which will open Wednesday evening with performances each afternoon and evening, closing Sunday afternoon, Oct. 10, will feature "The Cosmos," a thrill act performed on a motorcycle built like a space ship on a wire 100 feet in air. Headlining the show on Friday, Saturday and Sunday only, Oct. 8, 9, and 10, will be the Fuller brothers, a singing and instrumental group of wide fame. They have played a number of major fairs and other events in both the United States and Canada, the Worlds Fair at New York, and television and radio appearances. Additional acts are included to round out the show.

On Thursday, starting at 7 p.m., the presentation pageant for the queen of the fair, Miss Donna Long of Holland, will be held on the grandstand stage, in which she will receive her trophy and $100 prize from the fair association. Included in the pageant will be the first and second alternates, Miss Linda Pery of Caruthersville and Miss Christine Jones of Kennett, who will receive trophies, and the four maids, Miss Becky Little of Steele, Miss Paula McCarty of Malden, and Miss Sarah Dean and Miss Carole Eiceman, both of Caruthersville, who will receive gifts. Cleat Stanfill, KCRV radio personality of Caruthersville, will be the master of ceremonies and Legion Post No. 88 commander Bill Shaeffer will make the presentations.

An added feature on Thursday will be an appearance of Tony Pippen, editor of the Kennett Daily Dunklin Democrat and Missouri Weekly, who is an accomplished guitar and four - note harmonica player, "just for fun," as he says. He has played on a number of television shows, radio programs and at various community, college and high school events in both Northeast Arkansas and the Missouri Bootheel. He also will make a second appearance at the fair on Sunday afternoon.

Agricultural and home economics exhibits will be presented in the exhibition hall of Future Homemakers of America chapters of Caruthersville and Hayti, Future Farmers of America of Caruthersville and the Pemiscot County 4-H clubs. For the FHA the directors will be Mrs. Ralph Pinion of Caruthersville and Mrs. Beulah Huffman of Hayti; for the FFA exhibit, John Gale of Caruthersville, and for the 4-H, Willard F. James, Freddie Mailes, Mabel Bizzel and Thelma Davidson, all of Caruthersville. George W. Brown, secretary-manager of the fair, said that all other space in the hall had been booked by other organizations and business firms, many of which will give prizes just for visiting their booths and registering.

The fair's midway will be occupied by one of the nation's largest traveling carnivals with a number of new rides and shows, Brown said. Children's day will be Friday, Oct. 8, when all school children will be admitted to the grounds free of charge and the carnival rides will run at reduced prices. A special attraction on this day will be Trent Wood and "Tiny the Tramp" of the "Looney Zoo" program on WMCT, Memphis, Tenn. They will perform on the grandstand stage and also will meet children on the midway.

Another attraction will be an exhibit by the U. S. Air Force of a full scale model of the X-15 experimental airplane, 90 feet long, 40 feet wide and 24 feet high. "This will be one of the most interesting armed forces displays ever presented at the American Legion Fair and should attract a lot of attention," Brown said. Helicopter rides will be available by a professional firm of St. Louis, Mo., on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

James T. Ahern of Caruthersville, president of the fair, said that a number of invitations to various state and federal officials had been sent to attend the fair. So far responding is Sen. Edward V. Long who stated that he would attend on Friday.

Cape Closes Civil Defense

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. -- Cape Girardeau ended its Civil Defense program under a paid director this week when the City Council affirmed action taken by its predecessor Council and abolished the office.

The action came after two hours of discussion led by Frank H. Skelly, state director; Mrs. H. K. Carter, the city director, and Dr. John T. Crowe, all of whom urged the Council to reconsider the previous action.

The Council under commission form government abolished the paid office several weeks ago, effective Oct. 1, but it was presented to the new Council - Manager body for possible reconsideration.

Pledge to Speed Building of Sewer System

BLOOMFIELD -- At a meeting with the contractors of the sewer system and the city board, the board was told that work would continue as fast as possible to make the system usable.

It was also stated that the Sullivan Construction Company, contractors for the sewer system, would send a crew back to Bloomfield in the spring, which will give dirt on ditches across the yards time to settle and clean up those areas where the company had rights of way to lay the pipe. Fences will be put up and any other damage caused will be repaired. Mayor Corbin said the city is holding back payment of ample funds to guarantee this stipulation of the contract.

He said also that Weldon Finn of the department of health had approved the lagoon when he inspected it Thursday and that $9,000, three-fourths of the $12,000 Federal grant, will be received by the city within 30 days. The remaining $3,000 to be held up until completion of the project.

Hayti School Board Votes Out U.S. Project

HAYTI -- Members of the Hayti board of education voted 3 to 1 not to sponsor the pre-school education program proposed by the office of Economic Opportunity.

Board President Leroy Whitner presented the subject, discussed the advantages at length and asked the board members to approve the program.

J. D. Caldwell made a motion that the board not sponsor the program and the motion was seconded by Bill Rhodes. Whitener then asked that further discussion be held before a vote was taken. Several letters were read to the board by Secretary Ray Campbell from civic organizations and individuals. All expressed approval of the program.

Caldwell and Rhodes were asked by the president to give their reasons for opposing the sponsorship by the school district. Both stated that they felt the facilities were already overtaxed, and that the program would not be feasible for these reasons. The main objection was expressed as inadequate facilities in the lunch room, and a transportation problem. A letter from member C. W. Reed III, was read by Superintendent Sam Wallace. Reed was unable to attend the meeting, as he was out of town on business, but stated in his letter that he was opposed to the program due to federal control.

Bob Kneibert stated that he would be for the program only if it was administered by the school district under control of the school board, and supervised by Superintendent Wallace.

Vic Downing, county chairman of the OEO program told the board that all monies for the program could be turned over the school district, and disbursed by them. He further explained the program, and asked the consideration of the school board in attempting to work out the differences of opinion. However after much discussion it was obvious that there would be no compromise by members of the board who opposed the program, and President Whitener asked for a vote.

Rhodes, Caldwell and Clem Vivrett voted against sponsoring the program: Whitener went on record as favoring the sponsorship, and Bob Kneibert abstained from voting.

With the vote, it appeared that all chances of Hayti obtaining the program, at least during this school year, was killed.

Following the meeting, Downing told interested citizens that it was still possible for Hayti to obtain the program if the problems of feeding and transporting the approximately 120 pre-school children could be worked out.

Civic organizations are strongly in favor of the program, and it is felt by many that the problems can and will be worked out, in order that Hayti will be eligible to receive the approximately $77,000 and some 30 new jobs which are available through the program.

THE PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

The very fact that we all share one bread makes us all one body. (I Corinthians 10:17, Phillips)

PRAYER: O God, who dost make us one in Jesus Christ, help us to make this oneness more visible to the world that the world may believe. We pray in the name of Jesus Christ, who endured the cross to redeem all mankind, and taught us to pray. "Our Father who art in heaven. . . Amen."

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for four years and have undergone the third degree at least 1,000 times. My husband refuses to believe he is the only man who has ever made love to me.

He knows very well he was my first sweetheart. We started to go together when I was 15. I was 19 when we married. There has never been another man in my life and there never will be -- unless my husband makes me so miserable with his accusations and badgering that I am forced to divorce him to keep my sanity.

I'm thankful he doesn't accuse me in the presence of others. He waits until we are alone and the lights are out. It's always the same -- "If you will just tell me I promise I won't get mad. I'll never throw it up to you." Ann, it's almost as if he wishes there was somebody else. Why does he behave this way? It doesn't seem normal. Please tell me what to do. -- NOT GUILTY

Dear Not Guilty: When I tell you why he behaves this way you'll know what to do about it. Some people find out-of-this-world fantasy essential to their sex life. They cannot function without it. The thoughts they entertain (or the thoughts that entertain them) never cross their minds at any other time. Your husband conjures up mental images of you and other men because it excites him. He knows very well that it's all in his head, so don't let his questions bother you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am being married in a few weeks and liquor will be served at the wedding. I am a few months under 21 and many of my friends are under 21 also. I am not a drinker although drinking is not against my religion or my moral scruples. I just don't like liquor.

Would it be wrong if I drank a toast at my own wedding? I'll bet you've never been asked this question before. -- THE DRY ONE.

Dear Dry One: Don't bet your honeymoon money, Kiddo. Precious few questions are new to me.

If you don't like liquor why drink it? A toast is just as effective if there's ginger ale in the glass - or even water.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a middle-aged man who has been dating a middle - aged woman for over a year. (I will call her Lillian.) We both have very good jobs and money is no problem to either of us. Whenever I take Lillian out for an evening, whether it's to the theater, a movie, or a concert, she insists on paying her own way.

She does not embarrass me publicly but she forces the money on me when we say good night. I have told Lillian repeatedly that I enjoy her company and I can well afford to pay her way. It makes me uncomfortable to accept money from her. Her reply is, "I don't want to be indebted to anyone."

I'd like to know what to do about this awkward situation. I feel like a gigolo. -- GRAND ISLAND.

Dear Grand: Lillian is attempting to preserve her independence at the expense of your dignity.

She insults you by suggesting she would be under obligation to you if you paid for her dinner and took her to a movie. Explain your feelings and make it clear that from now on you insist on paying her way.

Parents are people -- they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

October 2nd 1965

To the Editor
The Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:

News about the 'Moynihan Report,' soon to be released by the Government Printing Office, hints that it will reveal that the slavery which ended here over 100 years ago had the same effect on its victims that the Nazi concentration camps had on prisoners. That the lot of the Negro is getting worse, not better. The blame will be heaped on American society in general, but never on the Negroes in particular.

I submit that the above is extreme exaggeration, that the contemporary American Negro is fortunate that his ancestors were brought to this country; while admitting that those who engaged in the sordid business of procuring, selling and using human beings as slaves committed the supreme crime against humanity.

The economic and cultural development of the native African today is below that of any other country on earth; and there is no reason to believe that the ancestors of American Negroes would have raised this level had they been allowed to remain in Africa.

Regardless of contrary propaganda, American Negroes do have opportunity in the United States; and while admittedly there have been injustices; the opportunities are greater here than in any other country.

The annual Negro income in the US is reported to be above 28 billion dollars, equal to the combined income of Canada, Norway and Sweden. Nearly 20 million American Negroes own more automobiles than all 150 million Negroes in Africa plus all the 200 million Russians in Russia. American Negroes own properties and businesses valued higher, and producing more income, than the total Negro investment everywhere else on earth.

Opportunity knocks in America for all. Most nationalities emigrating to the US have equalized opportunity by their own efforts.

Yours truly

When I Was A Boy

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes. (Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

B. F. "Pappy" Blanton

October 24, 1919 ent.

When I was a boy the average country boy did not have many playthings, as the boys do now; but just the same they enjoyed some sports that, so far as I know, are unknown at present. They had several kinds of ball games that they enjoyed about as well as do the modern base ball fans of today, but the real thrill came to the country lads during the summer months when they accidentally discovered a nest of yellow jackets, and there must have been millions of yellow jackets then. The boys would get a hand full of buck brush, and then the battle would begin, and notwithstanding the fact that some times the kids wore nothing but a long linen shirt they never stopped until they cleaned up the yellow jackets. But when the battle was over, they were generally stung from end to end. I have seen boys in such a fight, crying from the pain of the stings all the time the fight was on. Mighty few boys now know what a yellow jacket is, but their dads do.

When I was a boy there was not an Osteopath or Chiropractor on this mundane sphere, nor had anyone ever dreamed of such a doctor. The people rarely ever called in a regular physician, but doctored with home medicines and a little quinine. I have often thought that people would be better off now if they took less medicine, especially patent medicines. Many things have happened since I was a boy, and now we have osteopaths all over the land, and they certainly make good in most cases.

When I was a boy Christian Science had never entered anybody's mind. Of course we all believe in a Supreme Being and that he was a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him. When Christ was on earth faith in Him healed every one who called on him, but he made no charges as do some of the modern healers. Christian Science, like many other modern fads and institutions, was unknown when I was a boy. There is no telling what new thing will be sprung on the public before the sun sets for me.

When I was a boy, farmers bought few store goods, calico brown and bleached domestic being the principal things bought in dry goods stores, except that nearly every woman and girl bought a pair of store shoes for Sunday wear. There was no ready made clothing in the stores for either men or women, so their clothes had to be made at home. All farmers bought sugar and coffee, unless it was some who made and used maple sugar for home consumption. But it was a rare thing for a farmer to pay cash for his groceries, for he paid for them with bacon and generally sold enough bacon in the spring to pay for a year's supply of groceries. The good women, many of them, paid for their calico domestic and a pair of Sunday shoes, with dried peaches and apples. Those were the best and most self sacrificing women that God ever made, I believe.

When I was a boy there was no such thing thought of as a Farm Advisor, but those old pioneers did not need anybody to tell how and when to plant corn, or wheat or set out tobacco, but backed their judgment and succeeded in raising just as good corn, wheat, oats, and tobacco as is raised now in counties that are paying their farm advisor three thousand dollars a year to tell them how to farm. The fact is I never knew of a crop failure when I was a boy, but often hoped for a failure of the crop of tobacco plants but it never came. Of course, farmers did not put out as big an acreage of any crop as they do now, but they got good results from the acreage they did plant. I'll bet the modern farmer would not raise any more stuff than their daddies did if they had to use the same kind of farm implements.

Average age at death in the United States increased from about 45 years in 1900 to 71 years in 1960, largely because of a reduction in deaths among infants and children, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Warn Against Chemical Misuse

WASHINGTON -- The Department of Agriculture warns soybean growers against applying the pesticide pentacholorophenol as a preharvest drying agent on soybeans destined for use other than as a seed crop.

The warning was issued after the department learned that growers were using the chemical on soybeans intended for food, feed, and oil purposes. Such use could result in illegal residues being found in the soybeans and consequent crop seizures.

No Fall Signup By Wheat Growers

BENTON For wheat growers there will be no fall signup even if a 1966 federal crop program is enacted soon, Roy Proctor, Jr., chairman of the Scott County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee says.

Legislation now is under consideration by Congress which would provide a voluntary wheat certificate and a feed grain program. If these are authorized, signups will be held next spring.

Farm wheat allotments have been determined under permanent legislation. They have been mailed to producers.

POPE

Today we feel a common citizenship with you because we are here in your city and your country.

"Asking you for your prayerful support of our message for peace, we extend to all of you and to your dear ones at home, the aged, the sick and the children in a special manner, our paternal apostolic blessing."

The first applause and shouts of welcome greeted Pope Paul as he stepped from his airliner at John F. Kennedy Airport. It landed at 9:37 a.m. EDT.

From the "spiritual city of peace," the Pope said he brought his petition of conciliation to the "terrestrial city of peace" sought by the United Nations.

"Their meeting is most marvelous," he told statesmen and prelates assembled to greet him. "Justice and peace have kissed one another. May God grant that this be for mankind's greater good."

Waves of applause and excited calls broke out as U.N. Secretary-General U Thant escorted the Pope along a red carpet to a low, scarlet-carpeted platform for his remarks.

"Greetings to you, America," he said in incisive English. "The first pope to set foot upon your land blesses you with all his heart."

He praised this country, "so free, so strong, so industrious, so full of wonders," and he acclaimed the United Nations as "that greatest of all international organizations."

He came, he said, to give his support to "its permanency and its development" in preserving peace.

It was an urgent cause, in a strife-torn world but his reception was a festival of joy.

Crowds pressed around him, stretching out their hands, even as he departed the tightly restricted airport for his 24-mile motorcade into the heart of the metropolis.

Police, spaced at 20 feet, held back the throng. Children waved and bands played.

He started in an open car, but after about 10 minutes, the procession halted, and he shifted to a limousine with a clear plastic top, apparently because of the chill weather.

Over his white cassock, the Pope wore a short crimson cape, a white embroidered zuchetto on his head. He waved and smiled to affectionate swarms along the way.

The stirring, cross-town motorocade came after formal airport greetings from top officials of government, church and the United Nations.

Present were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller; Italy's Amintore Fanfani, president of the U. N. General Assembly, and Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York.

It was the end of a 4,280-mile, nine-hour flight for the Pope, but he appeared rested and fresh. He waved to the crowd, then descended the ramp slowly, and shook hands with the welcoming party.

For his brief talk, he donned spectacles, reading from a paper in his hands, while spectators stood hushed, intent on his words. Leaving the airport, police motorcycles and a cruiser led the way.

Today in U. S. History

Today is Monday, Oct. 4, the 277th day of 1965. There are 88 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1777, the Continental Army made a surprise attack on the British at Germantown, Pa. Disorganized by a heavy fog, the attack was repulsed with the loss of 673 American lives.

On this date

In 1182, St. Francis of Assisi was born.

In 1822, our 19th president, Rutherford B. Hayes, was born.

In 1824, the Federal Republic of Mexico was proclaimed.

In 1910, a Portuguese revolution broke out before dawn, by the end of the day King Emanual had fled and Portugal was a republic.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini met at Brenner Pass.

Ten years ago—The Brooklyn Dodgers won the World Series, defeating the New York Yankees, 4 games to 3.

Five years ago—The Courier 1B, a new type of communications satellite, was launched by the Army Signal Corps at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

One year ago — Fifty-seven East Germans escaped to West Berlin through a tunnel.

Cape Electric Plant Closed

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Because heavy summer electrical demands have passed, Missouri Utilities Co. has shut down its power plant. The plant was closed Sept. 24.

The move was a result of economy. The plant is now on a stand-by basis ready to open whenever necessary, Ray W. Call, company president, said.

No immediate layoffs of plant personnel are expected, Call said. Most of the plant's 23 workers will remain there to keep it in working condition and ready to operate at any time. Some workers will be transferred to construction work on the company's water plant and some will go to the new service center.

Most of the power oridinarily handled by the Main street plant will be transmitted by the Union Electric System under an expanded contract with the utilities company.

If there are any layoffs, Mr. Call said, they probably will not occur until after construction at the water plant is completed, approximately a year from now.

18 Firemen Calls

The fire department reports that it answered 18 alarms in September and firemen were paid $236.

Sharks, murky water and rattlesnakes plague men recovering parts of missiles that have crashed near Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Pope Paul VI

Pope Arrives In U.S., Makes Peace Appeal

NEW YORK (AP)—Pope Paul VI arrived on a brief, historic visit to the United States today, and was borne 24 miles between walls of cheering humanity to St. Patrick's Cathedral, a spiritual center of American Roman Catholicism.

"God bless this land of yours," the smiling pontiff said as he alighted from a transatlantic jetliner, a thin, earnest man in white, the first pope ever to set foot in the Western Hemisphere, on the longest papal journey ever undertaken.

The cathedral was the first stop on Pope Paul's unique mission of peace — its highlight a dramatic appeal to the United Nations for an end to dissension and war among mankind. Also on the agenda was the first meeting ever held in this country between a pope and a president of the United States. President Johnson awaited the Pope at the Waldorf Towers.

Millions paid tribute to Pope Paul in an almost universally respectful scene. It was marred only slightly by a fake bomb threat telephoned to authorities.

In bright but biting weather, with a blue car rug around his feet, and a bubble-top canopy above his head, Pope Paul rode for nearly two hours from the airport to mid-Manhattan. Crowds on the streets were up to 50 deep. Thousands looked on from hillsides, apartments and office skyscrapers. Helicopters roared above the 30-car motorcade.

Through Queens and its heavily Jewish areas, through Negro Harlem and Spanish East Harlem, through German Yorkville, the pontiff proceeded amid the crush of spectators to the cathedral at Fifth Avenue and 51st Street, the tumult of the welcome keeping pace with the speed of the motorcade.

He waved and smiled at the throngs. Many among the spectators had waited all night for a glimpse of the Pope. Some had bedrolls. At the cathedral the onlookers surged against police barricades.

The Pope walked up the cathedral steps to the sound of organ music and chimes. He knelt in prayer in the cathedral, then with upraised hands hands blessed the crowd.

Pope Paul told the gathering within the cathedral:

At 11:45 p.m. Saturday on route 60, one mile west of the Mississippi bridge, a 1961 Mercury, driven by Frank Ward, 43, Charleston, side-swiped a 1956 Ford, driven by Howard Nimis, 18, St. Paul, Minn., while rounding a curve. Neither driver was injured.

Cancer Kills Zachary Scott

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Zachary Scott, who switched with ease from swaggering drama to drawing room comedy in three decades as a leading man, died Sunday at the age of 51.

Death was attributed to a malignant brain tumor, detected after he complained of not feeling well last spring.

The moustached and darkly handsome star of stage, screen and television "simply went to sleep" about 5 p.m., said a brother-in-law, Fanning Hearon of Tryon, N. C.

Death came at the home of his mother, Mrs. Zachary Scott Sr. Her son, an Austin native, returned here Aug. 9, leaving for only brief radiation treatments by a physician.

It was the end of a career in which he played scores of stage parts and took roles in 34 films, mostly before he quit Hollywood in 1950 and returned to make his home in New York.

A private funeral service for members of the immediate family was arranged for today at the Scott home. Burial was in a family plot at Austin Memorial Park.

Senate Set To Give Foreign Aid Final Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was set today to stamp final approval on the foreign aid money bill and then plunge into debate on President Johnson's call for repeal of a ban on union shops.

Opponents of the repeal move, led by Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, have lined up more than two dozen senators to speak at length against the House-passed bill to junk Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act. It is this provision which permits states to outlaw labor contracts in which union membership is a condition of employment.

Administration forces claim a majority of the Senate backs repeal. But they are not claiming they have the votes to crack a filibuster. This requires two-thirds of the senators present and voting.

65 Jet Bombers Will Fly On Mission Over Sikeston

OFFUTT AFB, Neb. -- Jet bombers of the strategic air command began flying missions today against simulated targets near La Valle, Mo.

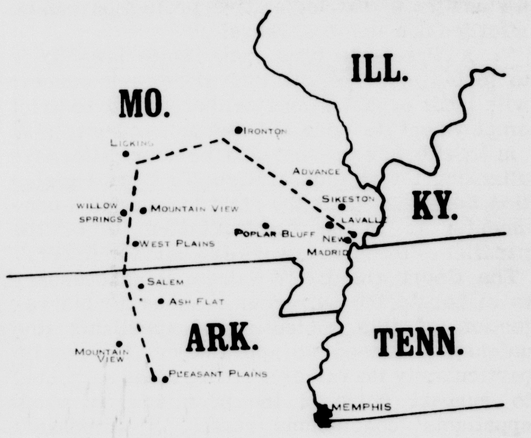

Radar bomb scoring equipment mounted on an air force train parked near La Valle will score the accuracy of simulated bomb drops by means of radio and radar signals.

B-52 strato fortress and B-47 stratojet bombers, traveling a 10-mile-wide corridor, will fly at altitudes between 1,000 and 1,300 feet above the ground during the training missions. No bombs are carried by the SAC aircraft.

The bombers will enter the corridor near Pleasant Plains, Ark., and proceed north passing near Salem and crossing into Missouri. In Missouri, the bombers will proceed north over or near West Plains, Mountain View and Licking where they turn eastward to a point near Ironton. The final leg of the corridor heads southeast passing near Advance, Sikeston and aiming points near La Valle.

The Air Force train which carries mobile radar bomb scoring equipment, will remain at La Valle until April during which period the corridor will be used almost daily by bombers for training missions.

The train is manned by about 65 air force personnel.

Russia Launches Space Rocket Toward Moon

MOSCOW AP -- The Soviet Union launched a space rocket containing an automatic station toward the moon, a broadcast Tass dispatch said today.

The probe was designated Luna 7. Tass said the launching was by a multistage rocket.

Tass said the station weighs 1,506 kilograms (3,313 pounds).

"The final stage had been put in advance on an intermediary orbit of a satellite of the earth and then in accordance with a present program put the automatic station into the trajectory of its movement toward the moon," Tass said.

Tass said the last stage of the rocket was put into a parking satellite orbit and then the automatic station was launched toward the moon.

"The automatic station Luna 7 is moving on a trajectory which is close to the prescribed one," Tass said.

The automatic station was equipped with telemetering, measuring and other scientific instruments.

The term automatic space station normally means the device is unmanned. It was expected the Russians again would try to make a soft landing on the moon with the station in a trial run for a manned moon flight.

It was the third Soviet moon shot this year. The other two were launched in the same way.

If all goes well, Luna 7 would be expected to reach the moon Thursday night.

Radio Says Army Is In Firm Control Of Jakarta

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—Radio Jakarta said today that the Indonesian army is now in "firm control" of Jakarta but added there are reports of Communist activity in other parts of the country.

The broadcast gave no details of the Red activity. Indonesian observers in Kuala Lumpur said Communist paramilitary units, who are believed to have been supplied arms from Red China, could be preparing to take on army units loyal to the government.

Associated Press correspondent Antoine Yared reported from Jakarta that there were fears rebel troops from central Java would attack the capital.

President Sukarno in a broadcast Sunday said he was "firmly in charge" and "the leadership of the army at the moment is directly under me."

Sukarno's broadcast was his first public statement since a "revolutionary council" led by an officer in the president's palace guard attempted to seize power on Thursday.

Radio Jakarta also confirmed that six army generals had been killed in the uprising. It did not identify them but they were believed to include the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Achmad Yani.

However, Radio Medan, in Sumatra, reported Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, the armed forces chief and defense minister, was safe at the headquarters of Maj. Gen. Suharto.

British Embassy sources in Jakarta reported to Singapore that Suharto and another right-wing general, Maj. Gen. Pramoto, appeared to be in control in the capital but that Sukarno was trying to reduce their power to "redress the balance."

For years Sukarno has played anti-Communist military leaders off against the Communists, but in recent months he had appeared to listen more and more to the Reds.

U.S., Mexico Study Water Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Mexico have agreed in principle to explore possibilities of building a huge nuclear-powered water desalting plant to service neighboring areas of both countries, the White House disclosed today.

Dr. Donald Hornig, chief science advisor to the White House, made the disclosure in addressing the opening of the first international symposium on water desalination.

He said the President had asked him to announce the two nations had agreed in principle on undertaking a technological and economic feasibility study of building the big reactor that would be designed to desalt water for these arrid regions:

Sonora and Baja California, Mexico, and portions of Arizona and California. The two Mexican states are on opposite sides of the Gulf of Baja in lower California.

Hornig added the agreement is expected to be signed in Washington later this week.

Other sources told a reporter if such a reactor were built it would be under the sponsorship of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Presumably the reactor plant would also furnish electricity in addition to desalting sea water.

RIGHT TO WORK: A CONSTITUTIONAL LIBERTY

The constitutionality of Right To Work measures adopted by Arizona, Nebraska and North Carolina was upheld in 1949 by the U. S. Supreme Court. The decision was written by Justice Hugo Black with the variant concurrence of all other Justices (Lincoln Union v. Northwestern Company, 335 U. S. 525, 531).

Appearing below are excerpts from the court's decision:

". . .It is also agreed that the state laws do not provide protection for union members equal to that provided for non-union members. But in identical language these state laws forbid employers to discriminate against union and non-union members. Nebraska and North Carolina thus command equal opportunities for both groups of workers. . ."

". . .Much of appellants' (the unions') argument here seeks to establish that due process of law is denied employees and union men by that part of these state laws that forbid them to make contracts with the employer obligating him to refuse to hire or retain non-union workers. But that part of these laws does no more than provide a method to aid enforcement of the heart of the laws, namely, their command that employers must not discriminate against either union or non-union members because they are such. If the states have constitutional power to ban such discrimination by law, they also have power to ban contracts which if performed bring about the prohibited discrimination."

". . .There cannot be wrung from a constitutional right of workers to assemble to discuss improvement of their own working standards, a further constitutional right to drive remunerative employment all other persons who will not or cannot participate in union assemblies. The constitutional right of workers to assemble, to discuss and formulate plans for furthering their own self interest in jobs cannot be construed as a constitutional guarantee that none shall get and hold jobs except those who will join in the assembly or will agree to abide by the assembly's plans. . ."

". . .Claiming that the Federal Constitution itself affords protection for union members against discrimination, they (the unions) nevertheless assert that the same Constitution forbids a state from providing the same protection for non-union members. Just as we have held that the due process clause erects no obstacle to block legislative protection for union members, we now hold that legislative protection can be afforded non-union workers. . ."

". . .Precisely what these state laws do is to forbid employers acting alone or in concert with labor organizations deliberately to restrict employment to none but union members. . ."

In legal briefs presented to the Court, attorneys attacking the validity of Right To Work legislation asserted "that the right to work as a non-unionist is in no way equivalent to or the parallel of the right to work as a union member."

The Court ruled: "We deem it unnecessary to elaborate the numerous reasons for our rejection of this contention of appellants (the unions). Nor need we appraise or analyze with particularity the rather startling ideas suggested to support some of the premises on which appellants' conclusions rest. . ." (Emphasis added)

OCTOBER CORNFIELD

Tall stalks stand in straight lines and the breeze rustles crinkled, frost-faded leaves. As one stands at the edge of the field when a pulsing northland breeze passes by, the dry-sounding music of the crisp, leathery foliage is part of October's melody.

A short time ago those long, narrow leaves were a rich green and the golden tassels were heavy with pollen. When a wind gust passed, a shower of pollen grain fell to the waiting silks; each silk received a life germ that meant a kernel on the cob. One remembers the August evening when he stood beside the field and in the moist warmth of the darkness thought he could hear the corn grow.

Now it is cool, crisp weather and white clouds sail in a blue sky. Hills and valleys are a master painting. In the light of the tenth month sun, the frost-crisped corn is a picture of brown and golds, amber and tan. At high noon when mellowness warms the land, there is a satisfying fragrance of rich soil.

As one walks through the rows deep in the field, rabbits scurry away and a handsome cock pheasant stalks regally along. Field mice scramble through the weeds and a blue jay jets from an ear he was tearing. Soon a man will go through the field and harvest the ears, and as he works along with a basket that he fills and pours into the farm wagon, he feels the warmth of the sun on his neck. An October cornfield anchors itself deep in a man's heart. He has faithfully nurtured the crop and the harvest is good. An October cornfield and a man's life are written in the same language.

"Sincere diplomacy is no more possible than dry water or wooden iron."--Stalin, "The Real Soviet Russia."

The gray haired cab driver hustled from his vehicle to help us into it and immediately picked up two small shopping bags.

The interior of his cab was spotless. It was his own.

He confided that when the cab business in Chicago went "company owned" he moved to St. Louis, where he could own his own vehicle.

"I buy a new car every year," he explained with obvious pride. "I sell my old car to another cab driver."

He also explained that he bought new tires long before the tread was worn off.

"I don't want to have to change a tire," he explained.

The veteran driver said:

"You couldn't pull me out of St. Louis. I love it.

"I do $35 worth of business a day," he said. "On Sunday I drive just enough so that my wife and I can eat a good meal in one of the restaurants," he said. "We've eaten at the best ones, all over the city."

The driver then told how he had given two children a college education entirely from his earnings while driving a cab.

"I had to work 12 hours a day to do it," he explained.

A son lives in Houston, Tex., and a daughter in Orange Grove, Calif. Both are launched on successful careers.

"If you were to meet either of them they'd give me full credit for providing a college education," he said. "And they didn't have to sell even a shoe string to get the money necessary for that education."

Anyone who takes a ride in this man's cab, ovserves his careful driving habits and his skill and listens to his life story is going to be impressed.

There are many college graduates who aren't as successful as he by any fair measurement or well understood definition of the term.

It is unfortunate that more Americans don't take pride in their work and give their efforts the dignity that this humble cab driver does.

This would be a better country if more people did.

There is merit and a genuine public service is provided by any person doing any needed or worthwhile work.

Our cab driver friend is aware of the importance of his job. He is right in taking it seriously. His job has done well by him and he by it.

He is a success--a great success.

SAD LOSS

A "See the U. S. A." instead of traveling overseas campaign is under way. Its purpose is to ease the balance of payments problem by discouraging Americans from going abroad and spending their dollars there and encouraging them to vacation within our own country.

All citizens should visit as much of this wonderfully varied nation as they can. At the same time, the "See the U. S. A." idea has brought a thoughtful comment from the Portland, Oregon, Journal: "A better way to redress the tourist balance than keeping Americans from exploring the world is to encourage more foreigners to visit us." Rising incomes abroad, it went on, are making this practical, and of late the influx of foreign visitors to our shores has materially increased. More could and should be done in this promising field.

Then the Journal said: "The new isolationism which seems to be growing in this country can only be harmful in the long run. Americans need to travel abroad as well as at home. We need to learn, each for himself, that our country is not after all the center of the universe, but rather a particularly beautiful and admirable part of a much larger and more complex world. Temporary controls on foreign travel, if they become necessary, will be a sad loss to American education as well (as) to American freedom."

One of the hopes of this jet age is that the vast expansion of world travel it makes possible will lead to a deeper understanding among peoples. We should not allow the balance of payments problem to interfere with that.

At least three major plans have been proposed in recent months for saving the best remaining virgin stands of California's great redwood trees for the recreational enjoyment and spiritual ennoblement of present and future generations.

One by the National Park Service would establish a National Redwoods Park. California, under Gov. Edmund Brown, is working on its own plan. The American Forestry Association, the oldest conservation organization in the United States, has advanced another.

Now a group called the Redwood Park and Recreation Committee, composed of representatives of lumber companies and leaders of communities in the redwood region dependent upon the industry, has presented a fourth plan.

Under this program, some 8,000 acres of the most handsome redwoods, which for years have voluntarily been withheld from logging by their private owners, would be turned over to the appropriate government agencies by equitable sale or exchange.

These areas include the world's tallest trees, discovered only last year, as well as superlative parklike groves near the famed Avenue of the Giants and 20 existing state parks.

In addition, the redwood industry would open more than 230,000 acres of tax-paying timberland to the public under the multiple-use concept of conservation, recreation and managed harvesting.

The committee believes that these lands, combined with those already under state and federal ownership, would be entirely adequate for the needs of the public for generations to come.

Some defenders of the redwood will undoubtedly disagree. But the important thing is that the need to preserve certain irreplacable, original stands of the inspiring redwood is recognized by both public and private interests. The will is there.

A final plan that strikes a just balance between the rights of the people and the economic health of the redwood region should not be impossible, or even very difficult, to achieve.

DISCRIMINATION-WITH KEEP

The Indian job-training program, which has supplied up to two years of vocational training, subsistence, medical care, transportation, supplies and equipment, counselling and employment service to more than 13,000 noble Redmen and Redwomen since 1958, has been made fiscally secure by the Presidential signature on a bill that will provide a million dollars a year to keep it going.

We note that this institution is open to Indians from 18 to 35 years of age living on or near Indian reservations. So we are wondering just how LBJ will explain this to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Roy Wilkinson, James Farmer or even the Vice President's friend, Joseph Rauh, Jr., ADA kingpin, and the National Council of Churches.

MANY USES FOR HOSE-SPRAYS

The hose-spray has won a lot fo friends in its old standby position at the kitchen sink. And it's winning even more fans these days in other parts of the home. The laundry room, for instance, is a prime location for a hose-spray as a valuable accessory to the laundry tub. It's handy for spot-scrubbing badly soiled clothes before they go into the washer. For numerous small cleaning jobs that you wouldn't want to do at the kitchen sinck, the spray-equipped laundry tub is ideal. The mud room is another good spot for it, connected to the sink or lavatory there. Home gardeners and hobbyists find it useful for cleaning tools and dirty hands.

PLEA FOR EXPORTS

The call for American industry to step up exports, voiced in Washington by Charles H. Percy, the photographic equipment manufacturer, should be heeded by businessmen throughout the country.

In an address before the national Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Percy made an eloquent plea for foreign trade. It is absolutely essential, in his words, that we, as a nation and as individual companies, become more export-minded and strive to reach the growing consumer, industrial and commercial markets of the world with products manufactured either in the United States or in foreign plants.

To the extent that U. S. resources are fully utilized, Mr. Percy believes the relative strength of the Free World will be greatly increased. Only through increasing our range of freedom in international trade can we put to use all of our resources -- resources which will be freed by the strengthening of economic ties with our trading associates.

Mr. Percy gave a case history of his own company's experience in world trade to bolster his stand. Today international sales account for some 12 per cent of Bell & Howell's annual business, as contrasted with a very small proportion only a few years ago. And the company's export trend is growing.

Adjustment to world trade requires some measure of sacrifice on a company's part, but it is Mr. Percy's contention that determination and perserverance will win the markets and make the effort worthwhile -- both for the company and the country.

He says simply to his fellow businessmen: "We proved it and so can you."

One August night, a friend and I were chumming blue fish. Our boats were anchored close together and our crews were fishing earnestly. We had been troubled by sharks scaring off the fish on previous evenings, but this night we had caught several fish.

Suddenly, my friend's wife had a hard strike, and he told her, "Take it easy! He's a big one!" Her fish veered across our lines and my friend kept instructing his wife to take it easy until we cleared her line.

When at last he was able to net the fish, all she had was the head of a huge blue -- a shark had got the rest.

After a short, stunned silence, my friend said to his wife, "I told you not to pull so hard!"

Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy Will be done on earth as it is in Heaven.

Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.

And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the Kingdom and the Power and the Glory, forever and ever. Amen.

H. L. Hunt Says

"CENTER" and "AVERAGE"

The whereabouts of "center" in public affairs and national policy is less certain than it has been since the beginning of the expression "right and left of center." During the trend toward communism and other crime, the average may not be safe enough for the nation to endure, but it would be good to ascertain what is "average."

Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) ratings may be acceptable to the greatest number of arriving at the "average" philosophy of members of Congress. In the 13 Southern states, including Oklahoma and Kentucky but not Missouri, the average ADA rating for Democrats is Senators 28 and Congressmen (Members of the House of Representatives), 56; Republicans in these states, Senators 10 and Congressmen 6.

In Pennsylvania and East, including West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New England, the rating for Democrats is Senators 84 and Congressmen 88; Republicans in these states, Senators 46; Congressmen 38.

Democrats in all 26 other states have an average rating of Senators 70, Congressmen 84. Republican Senators in all 26 other states 20; Congressmen 10. The complete average of members in the nation is Democrats 73; Republicans 19. The average for all members combined is 56. ADA ratings for the 94 new members are not available but are estimates comparing their voting record with colleagues'.

To enable the electroate to evaluate the present trend Democratic nominees should have an ADA rating or philosophy of 66 or higher; Republicans 21 or less. Members or non-members whose philosophy falls between these extremes can properly stand for nomination for either of whichever major party they choose. H.L.H.

NEW YORK (AP) — At what age should men quit work?

Most pension programs set the retirement figure at 65. But one of the most beloved physicians in history once launched a lively controversy by advocating that men should cease their labors at 60, whether they wanted to or not.

He was Sir William Osler, a great teacher and medical scholar who once remarked, "the desire to take medicine is perhaps the greatest feature which distinguishes man from animals."

The controversy he began is recalled in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The Canadian-born doctor was as eloquent with words as with the scalpel.

A great believer in the productivity of youth, Sir William got himself in hot water when, in 1905 at the age of 56, he made a farewell address at Johns Hopkins University before departing to take a professorship at Oxford.

Discussing his "two fixed ideas," he said in part:

"The effective, moving, vitalizing work of the world is done between the ages of 25 and 40.

"My second fixed idea is the uselessness of men above 60 years of age, and the incalculable benefit it would be in commercial, political, and in professional life, if as a matter of course, men stopped work at this age."

Then, in a humorous vein, he mentioned a novel by Anthony Trollope, "The Fixed Period." Its plot hinged around a college where, at 60, men retired for a year of final contemplation "before a peaceful departure by chloroform."

A garbled account of the speech went around the world implying that the great physician himself had advocated euthanasia for all men at 60.

The uproar was international. Sir William was denounced in press and pulpit and received hundreds of bitter letters.

Astounded and saddened, he immediately issued a statement pointing out he never had said men should be chloroformed at 60.

Two years later Osler, in an article, extended his regrets to "every man over 60 whose spirits I may have thus unwittingly bruised," but added:

"The discussion which followed my remarks has not changed, but has rather strengthened my belief that the real work of life is done before the fortieth year and that after the sixtieth year it would be best for the world and best for them also if men rested from their labors."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

ROME -- The late John F. Kennedy used to tell a story on Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Catholic candidate for president in 1928 against Herbert Hoover in a campaign featuring the charge that if Al were elected the Pope would move into the White House.

"After he was defeated," said Kennedy, "Al Smith sent a telegram to the Pope, 'Unpack.'

"In view of what the Catholic Church has done to block my Aid-To-Education Bill," continued Kennedy, "I am going to send a cable to the Pope, 'Pack.' "

In contrast, Pope Paul is going to New York today and the President of the United States, a deep-dyed Protestant, is flying to New York to pay his respects. The Pope is not going to Washington.

The late President Kennedy, of course, would not have flown New York to see the Pope and probably would not have been enthusiastic about welcoming him in the White House. Johnson is not afraid politically to make the trip; first, because he's a Protestant; second, because he has reached a greater accomodation with the Church on aid to Catholic schools and universities than any other president in history.

But there are deeper factors:

1. The greatly increased tolerance of the American people, who have come a long way from the days in the 1870s when Catholics were stoned in the streets of Philadelphia, the so-called City of Brotherly Love.

2. Pope John XXIII.

VATICAN DEBATE

Pope John undoubtedly did more to broaden the Church's friends and policies than any other Pope in history.

Here in Rome, an American Protestant remarked to me: "John was our Pope as well as the Catholics'. He made Protestants and Jews feel that they could be a part of the Church, and they can never take that away from us."

As the Vatican bustled to prepare for Pope Paul's historic pilgrimage to New York, however, there was a quiet but vitally important debate as to whether the above was entirely true and whether John's liberal policies were being continued.

To understand the significance of this debate you have to remember that Pope John generated bitter enemies in high Catholic circles. The Italian aristocracy made no effort to conceal its opposition. Some Italian leaders claimed that John was making the Church a women's institution. Men would not attend church, they said, because services would no longer be in Latin.

The opposition to John was not confined to Italian laymen. It extended to some of the die-hard Cardinals in the Vatican.

You have to remember also that the Vatican rules not only over the biggest and most potent moral institution in the world but also over one of the wealthiest. The nephew of the late Pope Pius controlled the distribution of bottled water in Rome. The Georgetown Inn in Washington, D. C., the Watergate Cooperative Apartments near the John F. Kennedy Memorial alongside the Potomac--both were financed with Vatican funds.

But Pope John changed much of this. His three great goals were: 1, to improve relations with all Christian churches and, if possible, bring them into a worldwide affiliated church; 2, to build a bridge between Catholics and Jews and Moslems; 3, to put Church doctrine across in modern terms and modern language.

To this end he abolished Pope Pius's ban that Catholics in the United States could not belong to Kiwanis and Rotary clubs. He urged the Catholic bishops to open their doors to Protestants and Jews, with the result that in Washington Catholic nuns have held open house and served tea to the leaders of the Protestant and Jewish faiths. Also in Washington, Archbishop Patrick O'Boyle serves a Kosher luncheon in deference to Jewish rabbis when he invites members of all faiths to the Inter-Church Racial Council.

JOHN'S WARMTH

John was a man of great warmth, who had seen human suffering. In Istanbul during the war, he had helped to rescue 15,000 Rumanian Jews before they became victims of Nazi prison camps. He went to visit the inmates of the prisons of Rome on Christmas day. He enjoyed a bottle of wine. And Ira Hirschmann told me how John consumed two bottles with him in Istanbul before he got down to the important subject of rescuing Jews from Rumania.

All this was behind John's ambitious plan for an Ecumenical Council to build his bridges with other religions. This was behind the inspiring spectacle of the largest religious body in the world--2,000 bishops, archbishops and cardinals--meeting in Rome to dissect the doctrine of the Church and bring it up to date.

This was what Paul VI inherited. Ever since he inherited it, the man who arrives in New York today has been the subject of debate by the curious of Rome as to whether he would follow in John's footsteps or veer over to the conservative wing of the Church. In Rome he is sometimes called "The Hamlet of the Church," debating with himself "To be or not to be?"

But the die is now pretty well cast, the debate almost over. Paul is not the Hamlet of the Catholic Church. He has now made his position quite clear--that he will not follow the broad, liberal policies of Pope John.

Paul is a cautious man. He is what Dwight Eisenhower would call a "prudent man." He is following the middle of the road. And the Ecumenical Council now sitting in Rome will be the last. It will wind up its work sometime before Christmas, after absolving the Jews for the death of Christ and after adopting a resolution for religious tolerance. But the broad-gauged goal of John XXIII to forge religious ties with Protestants, Jews, Hindus and Moslems will be abandoned.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LBJ Seeking A Magic Rabbit.

Washington, D. C.: -- Is Lyndon Johnson fresh out of rabbits? Is he down to the bottom of the sombrero or can he still pull a hare out of a hat?

That's what they're asking themselves in the highest labor circles when they discuss the repeal of "Fourteen B" -- which is most of the time now.

The nation's "in" labor leaders, talking amongst themselves, admit that without one more such rabbit, the masterful political magician will fail -- but not for lack of trying.

Few observers are aware that the President not only gave labor his word he'd try to push through repeal, but that he would smash the anti-union shop law in this session.

Such a pledge was made by Mr. Johnson to labor chiefs George Meany, Dave Dubinsky and Jack Potofsky during a confidential White House conversation as long ago as last March 10.

The Chief Executive asked only that they let him pick the moment for the big push for labor's number one objective. With him timing is everything and makes politics the art of the possible.

That day he said he'd keep Congress in session until New Year's Eve if need be.

The moment is now, and labor still is counting on the rabbits. Just the other day Meany said: "The filubuster must be broken. We are confident that it will be broken. . ."

Meany rarely says what he doesn't mean. Especially not in moments as tense as these for labor.

Why all the intensity? The basic story has not really been told. There's more to it than labor's wanting all workers to join a union.

There's the matter of the Democratic - labor - liberal coalition's control of the next Congress.

The President and his labor allies are practical politicians. They know the value of money and manpower in any election -- especially when it is strategically spread across scores of thousands of precincts.

This money, this manpower, this political network were indeed valuable during the 1964 Presidential campaign despite Mr. Johnson's ability to pile up votes on his own.

Labor spent millions to put across a liberal - labor congressional majority. They hit the streets with thousands of skilled organizers.

They told their people that victory in such a campaign would mean passage of their high priority legislation. And highest on the list, though quietest for months was the repeal of the law which makes it unnecessary in 19 states to join a union to keep a job.

Enough freshmen congressmen -- including labor leaders themselves - - were elected to make this Congress so pro-labor that one high spokesman said recently: "So many of our proposals have been passed, we have no legislative program left."

But now Senator Dirksen is blocking the top goal. And he is a brilliant parliamentarian. If he beats the Johnson-labor coalition, the Illinois orator will do it with the support of Democratic senators.

Labor's policy makers shudder at the thought. How, they ask, will they be able to go back to their thousands of activists and convincingly explain what happened. Certainly they'll blame the defeat on the Republicans and Southerners. But they fully expect their people "out there" to say, so what? We were promised!

And practical politicans know all about the danger of "what-have - you - done - for -me-lately" sentiment.

The sentiment will compound as next year's mid-term congressional election campaigns start. Thousands of the activists will take it easy or sit on their hands and union pocketbooks. This could cost the liberal - labor coalition over 50 seats.

Only once in history has the party in power failed to lose seats. That was during the brutal depression year of 1934. But Franklin D. Roosevelt's bloc lost 71 seats during the 1938 congressional election. The Truman administration lost 55 seats in 1950. Similar losses in 1966 would give Mr. Johnson an opposition Congress.

Such a Congress would serve until the 1968 Presidential election. To prevent that the President and the labor leaders will keep those lights burning in the White House.

The big hunt for magic rabbits is on!

Miss Joann King

Miss Joann King To Pledge Vows With Danny Sturgeon

MOREHOUSE - Mr. and Mrs. Theodore M. Bennett announce the engagement of their granddaughter, Miss Joann King, to Danny L. Sturgeon of Sikeston.

The bride-elect attended high school at Morehouse. The prospective bridegroom graduated from Sikeston High School and is presently employed at Jarvis and Conn Motor Company in Sikeston.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

Concert Campaign Begins

All around Sikeston this week, just as in hundreds of cities and towns all over America for one week each year, a small army of men and women from all kinds of occupations and all sorts of neighborhoods will start out each morning with a common purpose. These civic-minded workers are determined to contact every one in the Community who wants to enrich his life by increasing his acquaintance with the great music of the world. They are offering, as a means to this end, memberships in the Delta Community Concert Association.

"What are all these people being paid?" You may ask, and the answer is "Not a penny nor a sou." Their reward is in knowing, at the end of a successful campaign, that they have been responsible for keeping Sikeston in the forefront of communities which offer to their residents the cultural advantages that make life a joy rather than a grind. They know the satisfaction of a good salesman in bringing to their friends something worth far more, if used, than the dollar-cost. And they know that for themselves they are assured another season of excellent concerts which were once available to only the well-to-do in the largest cities.

Community Concerts is an organization operated entirely by interested individuals who from the various committees giving generously of their time particularly during the one week campaign now going on, to enrich their city. The entire membership fee of every member, as well as the financial support from many of the city's service clubs to make possible the highly successful student program, goes to pay the fees of the world-renowned artists who will appear in Sikeston or Charleston during the coming season.

All of this began in 1920 when a Chicago artist's agent found himself with a tenor but no established place to go. He offered the unemployed voice to local community music clubs, promising them a concert package provided they subscribed in advance. It worked and the idea grew. For basic self-serving reasons--to find jobs for their musicians--booking companies started to promote cultural clusters along the routes of touring artists. Community Concerts began in 1928 and has never ceased to grow. Each year, each association of the hundreds affiliated with Community renews itself by conducting a membership drive. Only after the volunteers have recruited a minimum number of subscribers to guarantee, in advance, the performers' fees do they choose and book their programs. Since Community Concerts is an offshoot of the Columbia Artists' Bureau, each year a representative of the latter comes to Sikeston to assist with the campaign and bring word of artists available. Through this method of booking it is possible for the Association to guarnatee to the artist that he will have his fee and an audience, and to the members that they will have the best artists for the size of the association. They are not restricted to Columbia Artists but can select any artists who are available in the area, and all arrangements are made by the Columbia Artists' Bureau.

Mrs. Lynn Stevens who has helped to make the campaigns of 1963-64, and '64-65 so successful is here now to help once more and will meet all the workers and their guests at the kick-off dinner at the Sikeston Country Club this evening.

'Burgers Get a Spanish Topping

Chili sauce and sliced, stuffed olives top ground beef which is seasoned with only salt and pepper. Broil the patties before topping since the latter needs only heating.

Ground beef is among the top meat preferences with homemakers.

No wonder! It can be prepared in so many different ways, ranging from a home-style meat loaf to a gourmet-type patty.

Less-tender cuts like shank, flank, round, short plate and brisket are used for grinding, advises Reba Staggs, meat authority. This cuts the fibers and makes ground beef tender enough for broiling, as indicated by this recipe for hamburgers.

Broiling is a method reserved for tender cuts, just as are pan-broiling or roasting (baking) as in meat loaf.

When tangy toppings are used for ground meat, keep the seasoning in the beef 'burger to the minimum. Only salt and pepper are used in most cases. Handle the patties as little as possible when mixing the seasonings with the meat so they remain tender.

Hamburgers With Broiled Toppings

1½ pounds ground beef
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine ground beef, salt and pepper and form into 6 patties ¾-inch thick. Place on rack in broiler pan so that top of patties is about 3 inches from heat. Broil on one side until browned, about 10 minutes. Turn, broil second side about 5 minutes. Spread patties with desired topping and broil an additional 2 minutes. 6 patties.

Spanish Topping

Spread about 2 teaspoons of chili sauce on each patty and top with sliced stuffed green olives. Return to broiler to finish cooking.

Blue Cheese Topping

Mix together 2 tablespoons blue cheese and 2 tablespoons chopped onion and top each patty with mixture. Return to broiler to finish cooking.

CASE DISMISSED

ARCADIA, Kan. (AP) — An Arcadia woman doesn't know whether to be angry or flattered. While fishing near her home she was arrested by a state game warden and taken into a Justice of the Peace court.

The officer charged her with "fishing without a license" and said she "looked to be about 45 years old." She calmly reached in her purse and produced evidence that she was over 70. In Kansas, persons over 70 need no license to fish.

Fifteen Attend Gleaners Class Meeting Sept. 27

The Gleaners Class of First Baptist Church met Monday evening, Sept. 27, in the dining hall of church with 14 members and one visitor present.

The opening prayer was given by Mrs. O. V. Thornton.

The president welcomed the new members coming into the class.

Reports were given by the ministry president and the group leaders.

The class decided as the projects for the months of August and September to furnish an article of clothing for a school child.

The president and secretary gave a resume of the past year's work.

The meeting was turned over to the installing officer, Mrs. Clifford Gipson, who presented a most inspiring installation, using Ezekiel 47: 1-12 as her scripture and "Channels of Blessings" as her theme in likening the various officers to the mighty Mississippi River and its tributaries.

The officers installed were teacher, Mrs. Dan Murchison; president, Mrs. O. V. Thornton; vice president, Mrs. Charles Stearns; secretary, Mrs. D. H. Page, Jr.; recording secretary and treasurer, Mrs. W. N. Crowell; birthday secretary, Mrs. Lynear Carter and ministry president, Mrs. Vernon Kelley.

The tables were beautifully decorated with a fall arrangement flanked by orange candles. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. A. J. Day, Mrs. Frank Parker and Mrs. John Gregg.

The delicate wild flower, "Queen Anne's Lace," grows profusely in many sections of the country. It can be colored. Cut the blossoms on their long stems and place them overnight in a slender vase into which has been poured undiluted food coloring a part of the way up the vase. Let stand overnight.

MEAT COOKERY Quiz

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef Inside Chuck Roll.

Q. Where does it come from? How is it identified?

A. It comes from the inside of the chuck or shoulder section, the forequarter of beef. It's a boneless cut, but unlike many similar appearing cuts, it does not need to be tied with cord or string for holding together. One end, pictured to the front, shows the rib eye muscle.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By braising. Brown the meat first in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season, as desired, with salt, pepper, herbs or spices. Add liquid, but not more than ½ cup. This may be water, vegetable juice, beef bouillon or even cider. Cover tightly and cook slowly 3 to 4 hours or until tender.

Those who homesteaded on the plains in the 1870's found very few trees there and so they used the good sod and built houses and outbuildings similar to this one. Sometimes they built up against a bank as that required less sod and work.

It took nine and one half acres of sod to build this sod-house at the Pioneer Village, located 12 miles south of I 80 at the Minden, Nebraska exit.

Morley OES Has Meeting

Morley Chapter No. 342, Order of the Eastern Star, met Tuesday evening, Sept. 14, with the Worthy Matron, Mary Susan Wyman, presiding.

After the opening ceremony, the flag of the United States was escorted to the East by the Associate Patron and all repeated the Pledge of Allegiance.

The following members were welcomed back after a long absence: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Grice of Oran, Mrs. Lillian Tomlinson of Morley and Mrs. Iva Bugy of Oran. Mrs. Louis Bolden of Sikeston, Chapter No. 137, was introduced and welcomed.

The secretary, Mary Swinger, urged that all who intended to attend the 91st session of Grand Chapter in Kansas City, Oct. 18-20, to please report to her so as to obtain their credentials.

Mrs. Grace Curd, Sunshine Girl, will report on her list at the next meeting.

The Worthy Matron asked that anyone having books or papers belonging to the Chapter to please turn them in. A search is being made to determine how many reports were lost when the temple was destroyed by fire in the early 1930's.

Mrs. Annie Lou Williams was appointed to take care of any orders for Eastern Star rings.

Mrs. Sue Tetley, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, announced that a few more orders for hosiery would be necessary before she could send in the order.

Plans are made for the Annual Chicken and Dumpling Supper to be held Oct. 7 with serving to begin at 4:30 p.m.

Following the close of the business session, the Worthy Matron announced that this was re-obligation night. The conductress and associate conductress escorted the officers around the altar in a semi-circle. The members and visitors were then escorted in a circle behind the officers. After a few brief remarks by the Worthy Matron, she and the Worthy Patron joined the circle and all repeated the obligation. The Worthy Matron returned to the East and seated the officers, members and visitors. The starpoints completed the ceremony while kneeling around the altar assisted by the Worthy Patron. They then resumed their stations and the chapter joined in singing "Bless Be the Tie That Binds."

The Worthy Matron thanked her pro-tems for the evening and her refreshment committee. She anounced that at the next meeting she would honor the 25-year and over members. She urged all to attend.

After the close of the meeting, all were invited to the dining room for refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and ice tea.

Cardinals Finish Seventh

The baseball season of 1965 would best be forgotten by the St. Louis Cardinals—all but Bob Gibson.

The Cardinals, World Champions a year ago, finished their year Sunday in seventh place, 16½ games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers. St. Louis' 5-2 victory over the Astros in Houston in the finale left them one game under .500 at 80 81.

But the triumph gave Gibson his first 20- victory season. He lost 12. The hard-throwing righthander flirted with the magic mark several other times, but never made it.

He scattered nine hits against the Astros. Jerry Buchek supplied the big St. Louis blow, a single that drove in the first two runs in a three-run seventh inning for a 3-1 lead.

The Kansas City A's ended a sour season on a sour note, losing to the Chicago White Sox, 3-2. The victory clinched second place for the White Sox and left the A's in last place, 43 games behind Minnesota.

Tom McCraw hit his third homer in the last three days in the fifth inning for the tie-breaking run off Jim Hunter, now 8-8. McCraw also tripled in the first and scored on Floyd Robinson's single. Robinson singled home a third inning run.

Bill Bryan hit a two-run homer in the second for Kansas City.

Reliever Eddie Fisher made his 82nd appearance of the season in the eighth inning, setting an American League mark.

Dodgers Whip Milwaukee 3-0

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Manager Walter Alston might have discovered a new Sandy Koufax.

He's Howie Reed-Bob Miller-Mike Kekich-John Purdin-Bill Singer-Nick Willhite.

Alston unveiled his new pitching weapon Sunday as the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers concluded the regular season with a 3-0 triumph over Milwaukee.

Reed - Miller - Kekich - Purdin - Singer - Willhite held the Braves to three hits one day after Koufax became a 26-game winner by halting Milwaukee on four hits in the Dodgers' pennant-clinching 3-1 victory.

Manager Alston, giving his second-line pitchers a chance to get some work, started with Reed, who gave up a double to Frank Thomas in his two-inning performance. Miller, who received credit for the victory, followed with one inning of hitless ball.

Then came Kekich, who permitted only a single by Woody Woodward in two innings, and Purdin, who retired all six batters he faced.

Singer took over in the eighth, giving up another single to Woodward before Willhite completed the versatile exhibition by setting down the Braves in order in the ninth.

The shutout was the eighth for the Dodgers in the streak — 15 victories in their final 16 games — that carried them to their seventh pennant in 14 years.

And as the Dodgers prepare to meet Minnesota in the World Series starting Wednesday, their pitching staff has allowed only five runs in the last 87 innings, a fantastic earned run average of 0.52.

Kirksville State of the MIAA squeezed past Pittsburg, Kan., State of the CIC, 20-19, to lead a victorious surge by three of the six conference schools Saturday night.

In the MCAU, Graceland and Tarkio scored conference victories while independent Lincoln overcame a 2-safety deficit to edge Central Iowa, 6-4.

Halfback Sharron Washington scored all three Kirksville State touchdowns and picked up 50 of the 81 rushing yards gained by the winners. His last T.D., a 7-yard run, and Mike Bielic's extra point boot erased a 19-13 Pittsburg lead.

Misses on place kicks cost Pittsburg. Gary Wilson saw two conversion attempts blocked and missed two field goals, one from the Kirksville 13-yard line with 38 seconds left in the game.

Protecting its unbeaten record along with Kirksville was Maryville State of the MIAA. The Bearcats stopped William Jewell of the MCAU, 14-7, in a battle of unbeatens.

Maryville took a 14-0 lead at the 3-quarter mark on Mike Peterson's 11-yard TD run to climax a 76-yard march after the opening kick-off and Mike Crank's 3-yard jaunt in the third period to end an 84-yard march.

Jewell scored in the final period on a 15-yard pass from Rick Fette to Bob Buschmann. Fette, a freshman, was substituting for the injured Jack Patterson, a 4-year starter for the Cards.

Springfield State saw its winning streak snapped at two, 24-8, by Drake.

The Iowans took a 17-0 lead before Springfield could counter with a fourth-period touchdown on Cornelius Perry's 93-yard kick-off return. Springfield is now 2-1.

Elsewhere in the MIAA, Warrensburg State won its first game, 7-6, from Emporia State on John Repp's one-yard TD run to climax a 13-yard play, 49-yard drive and John Hursman's extra point kick.

Austin Peay blasted Cape Girardeau State, 50-7, and Carson-Newman ripped Rolla, 27-0, in a pair of games played in Tennessee.

In the MCAU, Tarkio broke a half-time tie as Phil Homeratha scored on runs of 14 and 7 yards and Frank Shedlock hit J. Davis on a 23-yard pass on the way to a 28-6 victory.

Graceland made a 5-yard TD run and Darwin Pardoe's conversion in the third period stand up for its 7-0 victory over Culver-Stockton. In a non-conference affair, Missouri Valley scored twice in the final period on Ed McDuffie's 67-yard pass to Bob Thomas and McDuffie's 4-yard plunge to trim William Penn, 14-0.

Eddie Edwards plunged one yard to end an 80-yard drive in the final period as Lincoln more than equalized Central Iowa scores on safeties in the second and third periods.

Washington of St. Louis wasn't scheduled.

Player Wins Canada Golf Championship

By JOHN FARROW

MADRID (AP) — Gary Player, 29-year-old South African, left Madrid today as the king of the golf links — the man who has won all the big ones.

Player won the individual title in the 37-team Canada Cup golf championship by three strokes over defending champion Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, whose iron play let him down Sunday over the 7,096-yard, par 36-36-72 Club de Campo course.

"There's little left for me to conquer in golf," said Player.

He has won the U.S. Open, Masters, PGA, the British Open, the World Series and now the Canada Cup.

Player's victory in the 72-hole individual competition and his triumph with Harold Henning for the team title made Player the favorite to win the awards as the Golfer of the Year. He's already won the U.S. Open this year and the World Series.

Player dethroned Nicklaus with a four-round total of 70-69-68-74-281. That was seven-under-par for the sun - baked course littered with little oaks and well watered to conquer the hot weather.

Nicklaus, winner of the individual title for the last two years, wound up in second place with a 71-72-70-284.

Nicklaus' teammate, Tony Lema of Oakland, Calif., was way down the field with a total of 76-76-71-75-298.

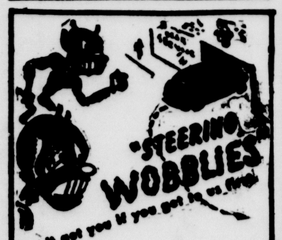

Lema packed his bags and said he was leaving to join the American Ryder Cup team at Birkdale, England, for the matches starting Thursday.

South Africa's team of Henning and Player won the team title — one held for the last two years by the United States — by eight strokes from Spain's Angel Miguel and Ramon Sota. South Africa totaled 571 and Spain 579. Lema and Nicklaus came third in the team competition with 582.

Don Drysdale Never Lost World Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Drysdale of Los Angeles, who has never lost a World Series game, and Jim (Mudcat) Grant of Minnesota, who has never appeared in one, will be the opposing pitchers in Wednesday's opener of the post-season Series for the world championship.

Drysdale will be working with nearly a week's rest. His last effort was a 4-0 triumph over the Milwaukee Braves Thursday which extended the Dodgers' pennant winning streak to 13 straight. A 23-game winner with a 2.78 earned run average, big Don pitched 308 innings during the regular campaign. The total is second only to teammate Sandy Koufax' 335. He also hurled seven shutouts.

Grant, the Twins' leading pitcher with a 21-7 record, tuned up for the big one Saturday and was roughed up by California. The strong-armed right-hander was tagged for three runs in two innings and was charged with the loss.

Dodger Manager Walter Alston said before his team departed for Minnesota today that he would use only three starters in the Series regardless of how many games it lasted. He had Koufax, his 26 - game winning southpaw, primed for the second game in Minnesota Thursday. Southpaw Claude Osteen, with a season 15-15 record will pitch the third game, Saturday, at Los Angeles.

Manager Sam Mele of the Twins was expected to start Jim Kaat, a left-hander, in the second game and probably Camilo Pascual, the erstwhile right-handed ace, in the third game. He also has Jim Perry, a right-hander, and Jim Merritt, a southpaw, as possible starters.

Drysdale has appeared in three World Series games. He has never opened a Series, however. The 6-foot-6 right-hander pitched in relief against the New York Yankees in 1956 without a decision, started and defeated the Chicago White Sox in 1959 and shut out the Yankees 1-0 in 1963.

"Naturally, I'm looking forward to my first Series start," he said. "I don't think the long rest is going to hurt. I threw enough in the bullpen Sunday to keep me sharp."

The Dodgers, whose principal attack consists of a walk, stolen base, error and wild pitch, will enter the Series with the lowest team batting average by a pennant winner in National League history. They finished with a team batting average of .245, yet won 15 of their last 16.

During that stretch, the Dodger pitchers allowed 17 runs in the last 16 games, which included eight shutouts. They closed the season with a 3-0 shutout against the Braves Sunday.

"We keep hearing about the club not scoring any runs," observed Alston. "I'm not so sure that we are so far behind in total runs scored between this year and our last pennant winning year of 1963.

"We may surprise somebody in the Series," Alston added.

The Dodgers hit 78 home runs, to rank last in the majors. They hit only 26 at spacious Dodger Stadium.

The Twins, noted for their power, added a new dimension this year. Reports have come back to Alston that the Twins employed a diversified attack in 1965, relying more than ever on speed on the basepaths. He has been cautioned to pay special attention to speedsters Zoilo Versalles and Tony Oliva.

Killebrew Dethroned

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Harmon Killebrew has lost his crown but found the range.

Killebrew, Minnesota's three-time home run champion in the American League, officially was dethroned by Boston's Tony Conigliaro Sunday, but he hit his 25th homer in the Twins' 3-2 victory over seventh-place California.

The number wasn't significant but the homer was. It was Killebrew's second in two days and third in the last five games, giving the Twins what they hope will be additional power when they open the World Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers at Minnesota Wednesday.

Killebrew, who missed 48 games because of a dislocated elbow but seems to have found the range just in time, finished with his lowest homer total since he began playing regularly in 1959 when the club still was in Washington.

It was the first time he has hit less than 30 homers and came after he had won the homer title three consecutive years with totals of 48, 45 and 49.

Conigliaro, who did not connect in ninth-place Boston's 11-5 loss to the sixth-place New York Yankees, won the crown with 32--the lowest winning total since Larry Doby also hit 32 for Cleveland in 1954.

In other season-ending games, the Chicago White Sox clinched second place by defeating Kansas City 3-2, Baltimore wound up third with a 2-1 victory over fifth-place Cleveland and eighth-place Washington edged fourth-place Detroit 3-2.

In the National League, Los Angeles shut out Milwaukee 3-0, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 6-3, Pittsburgh downed the Chicago Cubs 6-3, St. Louis whipped Houston 5-2 and Philadelphia swept the New York Mets by 3-1 scores, winning the nightcap in 13 innings.

Although Killebrew lost his title, teammate Tony Oliva retained his, winning the batting title with a .321 average as he sat out the final game. Killebrew's homer gave the Twins a 2-0 lead and they added the clincher in the third inning when Jimmie Hall singled, stole second and scored on Don Mincher's single.

Whitey Ford became the biggest winner in Yankee history when he posted victory No. 232 against the Red Sox despite surrendering 11 hits, including homers by Jim Gosger and Carl Yastrzemski. Tony Kubek drove in three runs for New York and Ray Barker two.

Tom McGraw hit a homer for the White Sox in the fifth inning, his third in three days, and broke a 2-2 tie. Eddie Fisher worked in relief for Chicago, setting an AL record with his 82nd appearance. John Wyatt of the A's pitched in 81 last year.

The "Golden Triangle" is the point in downtown Pittsburgh, Pa., where the Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers join to form the Ohio River.

Huskers Beat Iowa State

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nebraska and Missouri proved thay are the class of Big Eight football while Coach Eddie Crowser's improving young Colorado club left the impression it may become a title contender a year ahead of schedule.

Oklahoma State showed it still must be considered for the other first division spot by upsetting potent Tulsa 17-14 at Stillwater. That made it a break-even Saturday for the Big Eight outside the league.

Nebraska's third-ranked Huskers crushed Iowa State 44-0 at Lincoln. Missouri used a brutal ground game for 324 yards in an impressive 17-6 victory over Minnesota at Minneapolis. Colorado overpowered Kansas State 36-0 at Manhattan.

Oklahoma could muster little offense and Navy's 10-0 victory at Norman was much more lopsided than the score. Kansas, without quarterback Bob Skahan again, made only five first downs in a 17-0 loss at California.

Nebraska now has the only perfect record in the league. Colorado is unbeaten but once tied. Missouri has a 2-1 record.

This Saturday, the most important league game is Oklama State at Colorado. Kansas State plays at Missouri and Iowa State at Kansas.

Nebraska takes on Wisconsin at Lincoln and Oklahoma meets mighty Texas at Dallas. Colorado hopes to get by OSU and Iowa State the next two weeks. Then the Buffaloes would take a 3-0 league record into their showdown with Nebraska at Lincoln Oct. 23, a week before the Nebraska-Missouri battle.

Field goal kickers, aided by the new two-inch tee, had a big day. OSU's Charles Durkee hit three from 38, 48 and 23 yards. Down 14-6, the Cowboys used Bill Young's 21-yard interception touchdown and a two-point pass to tie it. Phil Cutchin's team got even for last year's 61-14 humiliation by Tulsa and tied the series at 21-21-5.

Colorado's Frank Rogers kicked from 33, 30 and 48 yards, the last one hitting the cross bar and bouncing over. Durkee's career total of 11 field goals is a Big Eight record. Rogers has seven.

Minnesota Coach Murray Warmath said "Missouri just ran the ball down our throats. I don't remember when a team dominated us so much."

Fred Duda took over for Bob Churchich at quarterback for Nebraska with the score 0-0 and moved the team. A year ago, Duda broke his leg against Iowa State and Churchich came in to lead Nebraska to the title.

Warmath named quarterback Gary Lane and defensive back Johnny Roland as the backs "who killed us." The Minnesota coach added "I don't know if I ever saw a better defensive back than Roland and everytime we got their offense in trouble, Lane made the play."

The Tigers whipped the Big Ten club from tackle to tackle. They ran out of an unbalanced line with double-team blocking. Fullback Carl Reese had 91 yards, and executed a perfect fake on Lane's first touchdown, an 11-yard run. On Lane's 20-yard T.D. he rolled left, reversed his field and got key blocks from Earl Denny and Ray West.

"This team has a long way to go before it's as good as our 1960 team," Devine said.

For Kansas and Kansas State, it was much the same story. Both teams are without a running threat, partly because of key injuries. This meant the opposition could afford to concentrate on stopping their passing game. Kansas made only 45 yards passing and was thrown for 44 yards in losses attempting to pass for a rushing net of 52. K-State had only 56 passing and was thrown for 61 yards in losses on pass attempts for a rushing net of minus 19.

The Kansas defense kept the Jayhawks in the game for a little more than a half, at 3-0. Then the offense drove back, but lost a fumble at the Cal 29.

The K-State defense held Colorado to a pair of field goals for a half. Early in the second half, K-State end Bill Matan hit Colorado's William Harris, forcing a fumble. Matan recovered on the Colorado 48, but a penalty nullified it and Colorado went on to score.

Coach Doug Weaver had high praise for Matan and defensive back Jim Grechus. He added "We've been down before and fought back."

It was Mitchell's first shutout in 68 games since 1958, his first year at Kansas.

The second-place Giants finished two games behind the Dodgers while dumping Cincinnati to fourth with the help of Willie Mays' 52nd homer, a Giant record and high in the majors this year. Ken Henderson's two-run single capped the winning three-run rally in the seventh.

22 Million Attend Baseball

NEW YORK AP -- Major league baseball attendance reached an all-time high of more than 22 million in 1965 for an increase of 5.4 per cent over last season.

The combined total for both leagues through Sunday's final games was 22,441,824. This broke the record of 21,280,341 set last year by 1,161,483.

The National League had the highest attendance in its history, 13,581,130, an increase of 1,535,940 over 1964. The American League dropped off 374,457, drawing 8,860,694 customers compared to 9,235,151 last year.

Cincinnati And Tulsa Are No. 1 In Mo. Valley

Cincinnati and Tulsa, despite its upset by Oklahoma State, are still the top teams in Missouri Valley Conference football, but Louisville moved into the No. 3 spot with a second half rally that beat North Texas 29-21 at Denton.

It was Louisville's first football victory over a Valley member in its three season in the league. The only other mark in the victory column for the Cardinals was over Dayton two years ago. That one counted as a league game because the Cards didn't play Cincinnati.

The Cards don't play Cincy this year, either, and their game with Dayton Saturday night at Louisville will count as a league game. Cincy's opening 28-0 victory over Dayton was a league game for the defending champion Bearcats and they made it 2-0 by beating Wichita 14-6 last Saturday at Cincy.

Next season the picture won't be so fuzzy, because Cincy plays Louisville.

Tulsa is expected to bounce back strongly from a 17-14 loss to fired-up Oklahoma State. The Hurricane meets Memphis State Saturday night in Tulsa's home opener in its newly-expanded 40,235-seat stadium.

In other games, all at night, North Texas plays at Tampa, Wichita at Arizona State and Xavier at Cincinnati. The Valley is 4-6 against outside teams, but could win four out of five this week.

Wichita got a 6-0 lead but Cincy drove back 63 yards with the kickoff for 7-6 lead. A lost fumble ruined Wichita's only second half treat. Tulsa had a 14-6 lead at Stillwater when OSU's Bill Young ran 21 to score with a deflected pass, and a two-point pass tied it. Then Charles Durkee kicked his third field goal of the game to win it.

Benny Russell led Louisville's comeback from a 21-7 halftime defict. He passed for one touchdown, scored another and added a two-point pass for a 22-21 lead. Then Wayne Patrick ran 57 to score.

Sea Bird Wins $217,000 Racing Stakes

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom Rolfe failed in his invasion of France, just as Carry Back did a few years back, but the courageous 3-year-old from the United States was a threat most of the way in the $217,000 Prix de L'Arc de Triomphe Stakes.

The pride of owner Rahmond Guest, Tom Rolfe finished sixth in the field of 20 in the race Sunday at Longchamps.

Considered by many as the best 3-year-old in America, Tom Rolfe, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, was second to Aniline on the turn into the stretch, but could not withstand the closing rush of the favored Sea Bird of France.

Sea Bird, winner of the Epsom Derby, came through on the inside while Tom Rolfe was steered to the outside. Sea Bird drew out to win by six lengths over Reliance. Diatome came in third, Free Ride fourth and Aniline fifth. Then came Tom Rolfe, some 16 lengths back of the winner.

The Arc de Triomphe overshadowed the weekend racing on U. S. tracks. The $109,400 Woodward Stakes at Aqueduct, another weight-for-age race, lost much of its glamor when Kelso was scratched because of an eye injury.

Victory in the Woodward would have made Kelso the first thoroughbred to win 1 1/4 million. With him on the sidelines, Roman Brother came off at a fast pace set by Malicious and Puck, and won by 10 lengths over Royal Gunner.

In other season-ending games in the NL, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 6-3, Pittsburgh downed Chicago 6-3, Philadelphia swept New York 3-1 and 3-1 in 13 innings and St. Louis beat Houston 5-2.

New High School for Charleston Approved

CHARLESTON -- The R-1 Board of Education Wednesday afternoon approved preliminary plans for the new high school building.

The building cost is estimated by the architects at between $1,125,000 and $1,150,000, with site work, basic built-in equipment and architectural fee to be added.

Architects Richard and David Pearce of St. Louis said they hope to have documents prepared for receiving bids by Dec. 15.

Approval of the preliminaries came on a 4-0 vote after motion was made by Bob DeLaney and seconded by James Moreton that the plans be accepted. Board members Bob Jackson and Fred Moxley were not present.

Approved by the board Wednesday were plans calling for:

A one-story structure with a circular gymnasium at one end, rooms around the circumference of the gymnasium for showers, band, chorus and shop.

A student commons and cafeteria separating the gymnasium and noisy activity area from the academic classroom section.

An academic wing, comprising more than half of the area of the building with a huge resource center at the south end, and partitions anchored at floor and ceiling so they can be taken down and moved without structural or material damage to floor or ceiling.

A heat pump assembly to provide heat and air conditioning at lowest cost.

Brick outer wall with black interior, the blocks to be pointed where exposed on the interior.

Roofing, except at the gymnasium dome, to be covered with built-up asphalt and gravel roofing material.

Acoustical tile ceilings with two-hour fire retardant rating.

Carpeting of three-ply material, with high density rubber backing to be used in the mathematics, business education, social sciences, language arts, academic areas, the library - resource center, one homemaking room, and administrative area. Other floors to be resilient tile, except in toilet and shower rooms, where flooring will be ceramic tile, cement for the locker rooms and shop, and hardwood for the gymnasium.

32nd Annual Fair Opens In Caruthersville Wednesday

CARUTHERSVILLE -- The 32nd annual American Legion Fair will open for a five-day run Wednesday, closing on Sunday evening. It is one of the few such events in Southeast Missouri that runs on Sunday, and over the years it is on this day that the largest crowds attend.

One of the principal changes in the format of the fair is in the racing meet which this year will be held on two days instead of four as in the past. The racing will be held Saturday and Sunday, starting at 2 p.m. with five races each afternoon.

Trotting races under the auspices of the United States Trotting Assn. will be run; sometimes called harness or sulky races. No heats will be used -- each dash will be a race, and all races will start and end in front of the grandstand. A total of some $2,800 in purses and trophies will be given. R. S. Greenwell of Caruthersville, track superintendent, said that by condensing the races into the two weekend days of the fair, more and better horses and drivers could be booked, and spectators are better pleased.

Officials for the racing meet are J. R. Hutchison, Caruthersville, superintendent; Felix Kyle, Caruthersville, clerk; W. W. (Burley) Chism, Hayti, announcer; Terry Shelby, Trenton, Tenn., starter, Dr. J. V. Moore, Hayti, track veterinarian; Bill Wilks, Caruthersville, timer; Monroe Leek, Caruthersville, paddock master; Mac Sandlin, Trenton, Tenn., presiding judge and Charles W. Foley, Hayti, and Greenwell, associate judges.

Another change in format will be the Regional Youth Talent Show which will be held this year on opening night of the fair, Wednesday, instead of later in the week. Instead of presenting as many as 18 or 20 acts as in the past, which was found to run the show too long, it will be limited to eight acts which are considered among the best to be found in the region.

Included on the show will be "The Travelers," a folk singing and instrumental group from Sikeston, which won first place in the Kennett Delta Fair youth talent contest and who will audition for an appearance on the Ted Mack TV show; the Fram Brothers, a quartette from Noble, Ark.; two acrobatic dancers from Jackson, Mo., trained by the Evelyn Bissett Dance Studio at Cape Girardeau; "The Meteodors," an instrumental group, from Bell City, Mo.; Alice Rainey, a dancer from Malden, Mo.; "The Bernie Blazers," an instrumental group, and Ann Merrick, an acrobatic dancer, both from Bernie, Mo., and the "Night Riders," a rock and roll band from Caruthersville. The show will start at 7 p.m. and will be followed by the professional grandstand show. Mrs. Lena Shipton of Hayti is director of the show.

The grandstand show which will open Wednesday evening with performances each afternoon and evening, closing Sunday afternoon, Oct. 10, will feature "The Cosmos," a thrill act performed on a motorcycle built like a space ship on a wire 100 feet in air. Headlining the show on Friday, Saturday and Sunday only, Oct. 8, 9, and 10, will be the Fuller brothers, a singing and instrumental group of wide fame. They have played a number of major fairs and other events in both the United States and Canada, the Worlds Fair at New York, and television and radio appearances. Additional acts are included to round out the show.

On Thursday, starting at 7 p.m., the presentation pageant for the queen of the fair, Miss Donna Long of Holland, will be held on the grandstand stage, in which she will receive her trophy and $100 prize from the fair association. Included in the pageant will be the first and second alternates, Miss Linda Pery of Caruthersville and Miss Christine Jones of Kennett, who will receive trophies, and the four maids, Miss Becky Little of Steele, Miss Paula McCarty of Malden, and Miss Sarah Dean and Miss Carole Eiceman, both of Caruthersville, who will receive gifts. Cleat Stanfill, KCRV radio personality of Caruthersville, will be the master of ceremonies and Legion Post No. 88 commander Bill Shaeffer will make the presentations.

An added feature on Thursday will be an appearance of Tony Pippen, editor of the Kennett Daily Dunklin Democrat and Missouri Weekly, who is an accomplished guitar and four - note harmonica player, "just for fun," as he says. He has played on a number of television shows, radio programs and at various community, college and high school events in both Northeast Arkansas and the Missouri Bootheel. He also will make a second appearance at the fair on Sunday afternoon.

Agricultural and home economics exhibits will be presented in the exhibition hall of Future Homemakers of America chapters of Caruthersville and Hayti, Future Farmers of America of Caruthersville and the Pemiscot County 4-H clubs. For the FHA the directors will be Mrs. Ralph Pinion of Caruthersville and Mrs. Beulah Huffman of Hayti; for the FFA exhibit, John Gale of Caruthersville, and for the 4-H, Willard F. James, Freddie Mailes, Mabel Bizzel and Thelma Davidson, all of Caruthersville. George W. Brown, secretary-manager of the fair, said that all other space in the hall had been booked by other organizations and business firms, many of which will give prizes just for visiting their booths and registering.

The fair's midway will be occupied by one of the nation's largest traveling carnivals with a number of new rides and shows, Brown said. Children's day will be Friday, Oct. 8, when all school children will be admitted to the grounds free of charge and the carnival rides will run at reduced prices. A special attraction on this day will be Trent Wood and "Tiny the Tramp" of the "Looney Zoo" program on WMCT, Memphis, Tenn. They will perform on the grandstand stage and also will meet children on the midway.

Another attraction will be an exhibit by the U. S. Air Force of a full scale model of the X-15 experimental airplane, 90 feet long, 40 feet wide and 24 feet high. "This will be one of the most interesting armed forces displays ever presented at the American Legion Fair and should attract a lot of attention," Brown said. Helicopter rides will be available by a professional firm of St. Louis, Mo., on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

James T. Ahern of Caruthersville, president of the fair, said that a number of invitations to various state and federal officials had been sent to attend the fair. So far responding is Sen. Edward V. Long who stated that he would attend on Friday.

Hayti School Board Votes Out U.S. Project

HAYTI -- Members of the Hayti board of education voted 3 to 1 not to sponsor the pre-school education program proposed by the office of Economic Opportunity.

Board President Leroy Whitner presented the subject, discussed the advantages at length and asked the board members to approve the program.

J. D. Caldwell made a motion that the board not sponsor the program and the motion was seconded by Bill Rhodes. Whitener then asked that further discussion be held before a vote was taken. Several letters were read to the board by Secretary Ray Campbell from civic organizations and individuals. All expressed approval of the program.

Caldwell and Rhodes were asked by the president to give their reasons for opposing the sponsorship by the school district. Both stated that they felt the facilities were already overtaxed, and that the program would not be feasible for these reasons. The main objection was expressed as inadequate facilities in the lunch room, and a transportation problem. A letter from member C. W. Reed III, was read by Superintendent Sam Wallace. Reed was unable to attend the meeting, as he was out of town on business, but stated in his letter that he was opposed to the program due to federal control.

Bob Kneibert stated that he would be for the program only if it was administered by the school district under control of the school board, and supervised by Superintendent Wallace.

Vic Downing, county chairman of the OEO program told the board that all monies for the program could be turned over the school district, and disbursed by them. He further explained the program, and asked the consideration of the school board in attempting to work out the differences of opinion. However after much discussion it was obvious that there would be no compromise by members of the board who opposed the program, and President Whitener asked for a vote.

Rhodes, Caldwell and Clem Vivrett voted against sponsoring the program: Whitener went on record as favoring the sponsorship, and Bob Kneibert abstained from voting.

With the vote, it appeared that all chances of Hayti obtaining the program, at least during this school year, was killed.

Following the meeting, Downing told interested citizens that it was still possible for Hayti to obtain the program if the problems of feeding and transporting the approximately 120 pre-school children could be worked out.

Civic organizations are strongly in favor of the program, and it is felt by many that the problems can and will be worked out, in order that Hayti will be eligible to receive the approximately $77,000 and some 30 new jobs which are available through the program.

Pledge to Speed Building of Sewer System

BLOOMFIELD -- At a meeting with the contractors of the sewer system and the city board, the board was told that work would continue as fast as possible to make the system usable.

It was also stated that the Sullivan Construction Company, contractors for the sewer system, would send a crew back to Bloomfield in the spring, which will give dirt on ditches across the yards time to settle and clean up those areas where the company had rights of way to lay the pipe. Fences will be put up and any other damage caused will be repaired. Mayor Corbin said the city is holding back payment of ample funds to guarantee this stipulation of the contract.

He said also that Weldon Finn of the department of health had approved the lagoon when he inspected it Thursday and that $9,000, three-fourths of the $12,000 Federal grant, will be received by the city within 30 days. The remaining $3,000 to be held up until completion of the project.

THE PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

The very fact that we all share one bread makes us all one body. (I Corinthians 10:17, Phillips)

PRAYER: O God, who dost make us one in Jesus Christ, help us to make this oneness more visible to the world that the world may believe. We pray in the name of Jesus Christ, who endured the cross to redeem all mankind, and taught us to pray. "Our Father who art in heaven. . . Amen."

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for four years and have undergone the third degree at least 1,000 times. My husband refuses to believe he is the only man who has ever made love to me.

He knows very well he was my first sweetheart. We started to go together when I was 15. I was 19 when we married. There has never been another man in my life and there never will be -- unless my husband makes me so miserable with his accusations and badgering that I am forced to divorce him to keep my sanity.

I'm thankful he doesn't accuse me in the presence of others. He waits until we are alone and the lights are out. It's always the same -- "If you will just tell me I promise I won't get mad. I'll never throw it up to you." Ann, it's almost as if he wishes there was somebody else. Why does he behave this way? It doesn't seem normal. Please tell me what to do. -- NOT GUILTY

Dear Not Guilty: When I tell you why he behaves this way you'll know what to do about it.

Some people find out-of-this-world fantasy essential to their sex life. They cannot function without it. The thoughts they entertain (or the thoughts that entertain them) never cross their minds at any other time. Your husband conjures up mental images of you and other men because it excites him. He knows very well that it's all in his head, so don't let his questions bother you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am being married in a few weeks and liquor will be served at the wedding. I am a few months under 21 and many of my friends are under 21 also. I am not a drinker although drinking is not against my religion or my moral scruples. I just don't like liquor.

Would it be wrong if I drank a toast at my own wedding? I'll bet you've never been asked this question before. -- THE DRY ONE.

Dear Dry One: Don't bet your honeymoon money, Kiddo. Precious few questions are new to me.

If you don't like liquor why drink it? A toast is just as effective if there's ginger ale in the glass - or even water.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a middle-aged man who has been dating a middle - aged woman for over a year. (I will call her Lillian.) We both have very good jobs and money is no problem to either of us. Whenever I take Lillian out for an evening, whether it's to the theater, a movie, or a concert, she insists on paying her own way.

She does not embarrass me publicly but she forces the money on me when we say good night. I have told Lillian repeatedly that I enjoy her company and I can well afford to pay her way. It makes me uncomfortable to accept money from her. Her reply is, "I don't want to be indebted to anyone."

I'd like to know what to do about this awkward situation. I feel like a gigolo. -- GRAND ISLAND.

Dear Grand: Lillian is attempting to preserve her independence at the expense of your dignity.

She insults you by suggesting she would be under obligation to you if you paid for her dinner and took her to a movie. Explain your feelings and make it clear that from now on you insist on paying her way.

Parents are people-- they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Dear Sir:

News about the 'Moynihan Report,' soon to be released by the Government Printing Office, hints that it will reveal that the slavery which ended here over 100 years ago had the same effect on its victims that the Nazi concentration camps had on prisoners. That the lot of the Negro is getting worse, not better. The blame will be heaped on American society in general, but never on the Negroes in particular.

I submit that the above is extreme exaggeration, that the contemporary American Negro is fortunate that his ancestors were brought to this country; while admitting that those who engaged in the sordid business of procuring, selling and using human beings as slaves committed the supreme crime against humanity.

The economic and cultural cultural development of the native African today is below that of any other country on earth; and there is no reason to believe that the ancestors of American Negroes would have raised this level had they been allowed to remain in Africa.

Regardless of contrary propaganda, American Negroes do have opportunity in the United States; and while admittedly there have been injustices; the opportunities are greater here than in any other country.

The annual Negro income in the US is reported to be above 28 billion dollars, equal to the combined income of Canada, Norway and Sweden. Nearly 20 million American Negroes own more automobiles than all 150 million Negroes in Africa plus all the 200 million Russians in Russia. American Negroes own properties and businesses valued higher, and producing more income, than the total Negro investment everywhere else on earth.

Opportunity knocks in America for all. Most nationalities emigrating to the US have equalized opportunity by their own efforts.

Yours truly

When I Was A Boy

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes. (Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

B. F. "Pappy" Blanton

October 24, 1919 ent.

When I was a boy the average country boy did not have many playthings, as the boys do now; but just the same they enjoyed some sports that, so far as I know, are unknown at present. They had several kinds of ball games that they enjoyed about as well as do the modern base ball fans of today, but the real thrill came to the country lads during the summer months when they accidentally discovered a nest of yellow jackets, and there must have been millions of yellow jackets then. The boys would get a hand full of buck brush, and then the battle would begin, and notwithstanding the fact that some times the kids wore nothing but a long linen shirt they never stopped until they cleaned up the yellow jackets. But when the battle was over, they were generally stung from end to end. I have seen boys in such a fight, crying from the pain of the stings all the time the fight was on. Mighty few boys now know what a yellow jacket is, but their dads do.

When I was a boy there was not an Osteopath or Chiropractor on this mundane sphere, nor had anyone ever dreamed of such a doctor. The people rarely ever called in a regular physician, but doctored with home medicines and a little quinine. I have often thought that people would be better off now if they took less medicine, especially patent medicines. Many things have happened since I was a boy, and now we have osteopaths all over the land, and they certainly make good in most cases.

When I was a boy Christian Science had never entered anybody's mind. Of course we all believe in a Supreme Being and that he was a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him. When Christ was on earth faith in Him healed every one who called on him, but he made no charges as do some of the modern healers. Christian Science, like many other modern fads and institutions, was unknown when I was a boy. There is no telling what new thing will be sprung on the public before the sun sets for me.

When I was a boy, farmers bought few store goods, calico brown and bleached domestic being the principal things bought in dry goods stores, except that nearly every woman and girl bought a pair of store shoes for Sunday wear. There was no ready made clothing in the stores for either men or women, so their clothes had to be made at home. All farmers bought sugar and coffee, unless it was some who made and used maple sugar for home consumption. But it was a rare thing for a farmer to pay cash for his groceries, for he paid for them with bacon and generally sold enough bacon in the spring to pay for a year's supply of groceries. The good women, many of them, paid for their calico domestic and a pair of Sunday shoes, with dried peaches and apples. Those were the best and most self sacrificing women that God ever made, I believe.

When I was a boy there was no such thing thought of as a Farm Advisor, but those old pioneers did not need anybody to tell how and when to plant corn, or wheat or set out tobacco, but backed their judgment and succeeded in raising just as good corn, wheat, oats, and tobacco as is raised now in counties that are paying their farm advisor three thousand dollars a year to tell them how to farm. The fact is I never knew of a crop failure when I was a boy, but often hoped for a failure of the crop of tobacco plants but it never came. Of course, farmers did not put out as big an acreage of any crop as they do now, but they got good results from the acreage they did plant. I'll bet the modern farmer would not raise any more stuff than their daddies did if they had to use the same kind of farm implements.

Average age at death in the United States increased from about 45 years in 1900 to 71 years in 1960, largely because of a reduction in deaths among infants and children, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Warn Against Chemical Misuse

WASHINGTON -- The Department of Agriculture warns soybean growers against applying the pesticide pentacholorophenol as a preharvest drying agent on soybeans destined for use other than as a seed crop.

The warning was issued after the department learned that growers were using the chemical on soybeans intended for food, feed, and oil purposes. Such use could result in illegal residues being found in the soybeans and consequent crop seizures.

No Fall Signup By Wheat Growers

BENTON For wheat growers there will be no fall signup even if a 1966 federal crop program is enacted soon, Roy Proctor, Jr., chairman of the Scott County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee says.

Legislation now is under consideration by Congress which would provide a voluntary wheat certificate and a feed grain program. If these are authorized, signups will be held next spring.

Farm wheat allotments have been determined under permanent legislation. They have been mailed to producers.

Today we feel a common citizenship with you because we are here in your city and your country.

"Asking you for your prayerful support of our message for peace, we extend to all of you and to your dear ones at home, the aged, the sick and the children in a special manner, our paternal apostolic blessing."

The first applause and shouts of welcome greeted Pope Paul as he stepped from his airliner at John F. Kennedy Airport. It landed at 9:37 a.m. EDT.

From the "spiritual city of peace," the Pope said he brought his petition of conciliation to the "terrestrial city of peace" sought by the United Nations.

"Their meeting is most marvelous," he told statesmen and prelates assembled to greet him. "Justice and peace have kissed one another. May God grant that this be for mankind's greater good."

Waves of applause and excited calls broke out as U.N. Secretary-General U Thant escorted the Pope along a red carpet to a low, scarlet-carpeted platform for his remarks.

"Greetings to you, America," he said in incisive English. "The first pope to set foot upon your land blesses you with all his heart."

He praised this country, "so free, so strong, so industrious, so full of wonders," and he acclaimed the United Nations as "that greatest of all international organizations."

He came, he said, to give his support to "its permanency and its development" in preserving peace.

It was an urgent cause, in a strife-torn world but his reception was a festival of joy.

Crowds pressed around him, stretching out their hands, even as he departed the tightly restricted airport for his 24-mile motorcade into the heart of the metropolis.

Police, spaced at 20 feet, held back the throng. Children waved and bands played.

He started in an open car, but after about 10 minutes, the procession halted, and he shifted to a limousine with a clear plastic top, apparently because of the chill weather.

Over his white cassock, the Pope wore a short crimson cape, a white embroidered zuchetto on his head. He waved and smiled to affectionate swarms along the way.

The stirring, cross-town motorocade came after formal airport greetings from top officials of government, church and the United Nations.

Present were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller; Italy's Amintore Fanfani, president of the U. N. General Assembly, and Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York.

It was the end of a 4,280-mile, nine-hour flight for the Pope, but he appeared rested and fresh. He waved to the crowd, then descended the ramp slowly, and shook hands with the welcoming party.

For his brief talk, he donned spectacles, reading from a paper in his hands, while spectators stood hushed, intent on his words. Leaving the airport, police motorcycles and a cruiser led the way.

Today in U. S. History

Today is Monday, Oct. 4, the 277th day of 1965. There are 88 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1777, the Continental Army made a surprise attack on the British at Germantown, Pa. Disorganized by a heavy fog, the attack was repulsed with the loss of 673 American lives.

On this date

In 1182, St. Francis of Assisi was born.

In 1822, our 19th president, Rutherford B. Hayes, was born.

In 1824, the Federal Republic of Mexico was proclaimed.

In 1910, a Portuguese revolution broke out before dawn, by the end of the day King Emanual had fled and Portugal was a republic.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini met at Brenner Pass.

Ten years ago—The Brooklyn Dodgers won the World Series, defeating the New York Yankees, 4 games to 3.

Five years ago—The Courier 1B, a new type of communications satellite, was launched by the Army Signal Corps at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

One year ago — Fifty-seven East Germans escaped to West Berlin through a tunnel.

Cape Electric Plant Closed

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Because heavy summer electrical demands have passed, Missouri Utilities Co. has shut down its power plant. The plant was closed Sept. 24.

The move was a result of economy. The plant is now on a stand-by basis ready to open whenever necessary, Ray W. Call, company president, said.

No immediate layoffs of plant personnel are expected, Call said. Most of the plant's 23 workers will remain there to keep it in working condition and ready to operate at any time. Some workers will be transferred to construction work on the company's water plant and some will go to the new service center.

Most of the power oridinarily handled by the Main street plant will be transmitted by the Union Electric System under an expanded contract with the utilities company.

If there are any layoffs, Mr. Call said, they probably will not occur until after construction at the water plant is completed, approximately a year from now.

18 Firemen Calls

The fire department reports that it answered 18 alarms in September and firemen were paid $236.

Sharks, murky water and rattlesnakes plague men recovering parts of missiles that have crashed near Cape Kennedy, Fla.
